Taj mali događaj za svijet dokumentaristike ali velik za nas zbio se negdje u listopadu prošle godine kada mi je predstavnica Danskog filmskog instituta poslala ljubazni mail zamolivši za sastanak za vrijeme IDFA festivala u Amsterdamu kako bi predstavila nove danske dokumentarce koji bi možda odgovarali ZagrebDoxu.

Kad se tako nešto dogodi festivalu koji je prije samo pet godina bio apsolutni autsajder u svijetu dokumentaristike i s dosta teškoća nabavljao filmove, moguće je reći samo - 'we did it!'. Da smo se doista uspjeli upisati u mapu europskih i svjetskih festivala govori i činjenica da sam ove godine mogao birati između pet stotina filmova (da budem precizan, 497, i to bez retrospektiva), od čega stotinjak iz regije, a četrdesetak samo iz Hrvatske.

Neka mi bude dopušteno reći da stvari prije petnaestak godina, kada sam krenuo u čitavu tu dokumentarističku avanturu, nisu izgledale nimalo obećavajuće. U međuvremenu - Imaginarna akademija, Factum, ADU, ZagrebDox; stotinjak proizvedenih filmova, šestotinjak prikazanih, projekcije, tribine, knjige, DVD izdanja; nagrade i priznanja, kritike i osporavanja ... petnaest godina života, pet godina ZagrebDoxa.

Nećemo slaviti jer, a i u tome smo ostali svoji, ne volimo crvene tepihe, 'after partyje' i 'lounge domjenke'... prije svega stoga što mislimo da je svijet dokumentarnog filma, i možda još više, svijet koji tematizira dokumentarni film, nespojiv s razmetanjem i glamurom.

Naša je namjera uvijek bila jednostavna - svjedočiti o vremenu u kojem živimo, o njegovim traumama, problemima i nadama, o ljudima i događajima koje ne smijemo i ne trebamo zaboraviti... naročito mi, u ovim našim krajevima.

U tom smislu i ove, 'jubilarne' godine, uz postojeće natjecateljske i popratne programe, istražujemo nove programske formate. Iskušavamo (jer u našem poslu nema sigurnosti) dva nova programa - jedan, 'socijal-kapitalizam' koji se bavi analizom i prikazom stanja u suvremenom društvu i drugi, nazvan jednostavno 'happy dox', koji bi trebao biti odgovor na sve one tmurne, depresivne, dramatične pa i beznadne filmske priče kojima su dokumentaristi ponekad skloni.

Nadamo se da ćemo na taj način dati svoj prilog razumijevanju svjetske, ali i nacionalne krize koja nas sve pogada, i da će smijeh koji izmame filmovi iz 'happy doxa' predstavljati barem blagi melem na ranu sviju nas koji, nakon svih mogućih 'izama', tranzicija i lopovluka, moramo proći još jedno 'otrežnjenje'.

Znajući u kakvim se vremenima odvija ovaj festival, želim još jednom posebno zahvaliti svima onima koji su s nama otpočetka ili su nam se kasnije priključili i - ostali; svim sponzorima i partnerima, svim gledateljima (a prošle ih je godine bilo više od 20.000), medijima - svima onima koji nam pomažu da napravimo - ZagrebDox!

I, još nešto - beskrajno nam je drago što ove godine prikazujemo i filmove koji su 'začeti' ili dobili 'vjetar u leđa' baš na ZagrebDoxu. Ove godine radi se o filmovima 'Corridor 8', 'Cash & Marry' i 'Kavijar konekšn', koji su svi prošli radionice i bili 'pitchani' baš na ZagrebDoxu.

Još je mnogo takvih dokumentaraca u snimanju, montaži, sinkronizaciji...; i ta nam činjenica, uz bezbroj sjajnih dokumentaraca od kojih vam na festivalu stignemo prikazati samo neke, daje nadu u novu budućnost ZagrebDoxa, sljedećih pet, petnaest ili pedeset godina!

Sretan vam Dox!

ZagrebDox 2009

This was a small event for the world of documentaries but a giant leap for us. It took place some time in October last year, when the representative of Danish Film Institute sent me a kind email asking me to meet her during IDFA Festival in Amsterdam so that she could present to me new Danish documentaries that might be of interest for ZagrebDox.

When such a thing happens to the festival which only five years ago was an absolute outsider in the world of documentaries and had to go through many difficulties to get hold of films, all we can say is - 'We did it!' That we really did manage to put ZagrebDox on the map of European and world festivals can be seen from the fact that, this year, I had a chance to make a pick from five hundred films [497, to be exact - without retrospectives]

Allow me to say that, some fifteen years ago, when I set out in this 'documentary adventure', things did not look promising at all. And yet, there followed: Imaginary Academy, Factum, ADU, ZagrebDox; a hundred of films produced; six hundred of films shown; screenings, panel discussions, books, DVD editions, awards and recognitions, criticism and negations... fifteen years of life, five years of ZagrebDox.

Being true to ourselves, we won't be celebrating because we are not 'red carpet', 'after party' or 'lounge party' types... primarily because we think that the world of documentary film and, probably even more, the world documentaries deal with, is incompatible with glamour and showing off.

Our intention has always been a simple one - to document the time we live in, its traumas, problems and hopes, the people and events we must not and should not forget... especially we in these parts.

This is why, while showing our regular competition and side programs in this 'jubilee year', we continue to explore new program formats. We are testing (because there is no certainty in our business) two new programs - one, Social-Capitalism, analyzing and showing the state of the affairs in modern society, and the other, called simply Happy Dox, a reaction to all those bleak, depressing, dramatic and even hopeless stories that documentary film makers sometimes favor.

We hope this will be our contribution to the understanding of the world and national crises affecting us all and that your laughter after seeing films from Happy Dox will at least soothe the pain of all of us who, after all the -isms, transitions and robberies, have to experience yet another 'rude awakening'.

Being aware of the hard times this festival is taking place in, I want to repeat my gratitude to all those who have been with us from the start or have joined us along the way and stayed; to all sponsors and partners, to our audience (exceeding 20,000 last year) and to media - to all those who are helping us make ZagrebDox!

And one more thing - I am particularly happy that this year we can show the films that were 'conceived', or 'gained momentum', at ZagrebDox: 'Corridor 8', 'Cash & Marry' and 'Kavijar konekšn' were all submitted to our workshops and were 'pitched' at our festival.

There are many such documentaries being shot, edited, synchronized... as we speak; this fact alone, not to mention endless brilliant documentaries of which only a small part we can show at the festival, gives us hope for the future of ZagrebDox, for next five, fifteen or fifty year!

Enjoy ZagrebDox!

a small event for the world of documentaries...

Milan Bandić
gradonačelnik grada Zagreba

Dokumentarac je, kažu znalci, najbolje zrcalo koje jedno zrelo društvo može staviti preda se.

Nakon iskustva pokretanja Factuma, Nenad Puhovski i njegova ekipa krenuli su prije pet godina u stvaranje jednog takvog projekta – pravog, istinski međunarodnog, a hrvatski i regionalno fokusiranog dokumentarnog festivala – ZagrebDoxa.

Postavili su pred sve nas zrcalo, ali ono – dvostrano. Zrcalo u kojemu se možemo ogledati, vidjeti sebe, svoje probleme i moguća rješenja; ali ujedno kroz nj i u njemu vidjeti i svijet, sve ono što se u njemu događa, ono što se izravno reflektira na nas, ono što nas zanima, pa i ono što je samo njegova čudna, zanimljiva ili smiješna strana.

U situaciji u kojoj je kvalitetni, autorski dokumentarni film teško, pa i nemoguće vidjeti na ekranima naših televizija ili na programima naših kina, publike, mediji i stručna javnost bez ustezanja su prihvatali ovaj festival. Više od 20.000 Zagrepčana koji su prošle godine vidjeli filmove na ZagrebDoxu, kao i stotine medijskih objava, najbolje govore o tome.

Zagreb u njegovu imenu nije samo znak puke geografske lokacije – ZagrebDox je uistinu zagrebački festival – po ljudima koji ga stvaraju, po atmosferi koja na njemu vlada, ali prije svega po publici – pravoj zagrebačkoj, svih generacija i svih interesa.

Prepoznajući njegove vrijednosti, Grad Zagreb je, prije svega podrškom svog Ureda za obrazovanje, kulturu i šport, od prvog dana podržao ovaj projekt.

Danas, kada mnogi žele budžetske restrikcije provesti najprije u kulturi i sličnim 'neproduktivnim' sektorima, Zagreb, njegovo poglavarstvo i njegovi uredi ustraju u podršci, među ostalim, projektima poput ZagrebDoxa.

I stoga, čestitajući ekipi ZagrebDoxa njihovu petu obljetnicu, želim naglasiti da ćemo sa ZagrebDoxom i sličnim projektima biti i u budućnosti.

Milan Bandić
the mayor of Zagreb

In the words of experts, documentaries are the best mirror a mature society can use.

Five years ago, after launching Factum, Nenad Puhovski and his team ventured upon one such project - a truly international and yet Croatian documentary film festival focused on the region - ZagrebDox.

They put the mirror in front of us all, but it turned out to be a two-way mirror. The one in which we can take a look at ourselves, see our problems and possible solutions; but also the one through which we can see the world and everything that is going on in it, everything that reflects on us and attracts our interest. Even those things that are nothing but its strange and funny side.

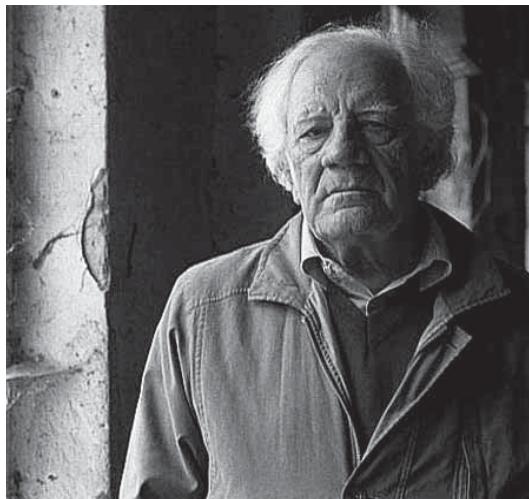

In a situation where high-quality, auteur documentaries are hard to find on our TV sets or in our theaters, if at all possible, the audience, media and experts have embraced this festival without reluctance. More than 20,000 Zagrebbers who watched the films at last year's ZagrebDox and huge media coverage speak for themselves.

Zagreb in this festival's name is not just a mere geographical determination - for ZagrebDox is truly a Zagreb festival by the people who make it, by the atmosphere one finds there and, first of all, by its audience - true Zagrebbers of all generations and from all walks of life.

Having recognized its value, the City of Zagreb has been supporting this project since day one, primarily through its Office for Education, Culture and Sports.

Today, when there are many who see culture and other 'unproductive' sectors as primary targets for budget cuts, Zagreb and its government have persisted in extending support to ZagrebDox and other similar projects.

And so, while joining the ZagrebDox crew in marking of the festival's fifth anniversary, I would like to emphasize that we will continue to support such projects in future.

Danas su crvene vjeverice istisnute u sjeverne dijelove zemlje i procjenjuje se da ih je ostalo samo oko 150.000, u usporedbi s oko 2 milijuna sivih vjeverica. To je razbješnjelo mnoge Britance te su se brojne organizacije i pojedinci počeli zauzimati za crvenu vjevericu. Njihove su metode međusobno vrlo različite, ali svi imaju isti cilj – zaustaviti invaziju uljeza i sačuvati omiljenu životinju i nacionalni simbol.

'Robovi' je animirani kratki dokumentarac. Razgovor s Slaves is an animated documentary short. The conversation is between two freed children from southern Sudan, who were kidnapped by a government-supported militia and forced into slavery. The filmmakers stress this fact by keeping the sound of them messing around with the recording equipment before the conversation began. The recording took place in 2003, when the 20-year-long civil war in southern Sudan was drawing to a close. The family names of the two children, aged 9 and 15, have been bleeped out to protect their privacy.

Koridor 8

Snimljen u šest sati na jednoj lokaciji, ovaj dokumentarac predstavlja čovjeka koji tvrdi da je bio 78 puta osuđen i tijekom tih 78 putova, bio je u tome hrvatski rekorder. U tih 78 putova, bio je osuđen samo jednom. Filmom upoznajući ga, učimo se njegovu odbojnost prema institucijama, ali i jednu osebujnu životnu filozofiju.

Shot within six hours on a single location, this documentary shows us a man who claims he has been detained for 78 times which makes him a record-holder in Croatia. In these 78 times in prison, he was convicted only once. The film shows us his aversion against institutions and his peculiar life philosophy.

Igor Bezinović rođen je u Rijeci 1983. Diplomirao je filozofiju i sociologiju na Filozofskom fakultetu u Zagrebu, gdje je i apsolvent komparativne književnosti. Student je filmske i TV režije na ADU. 'Natprosječan' je njegov prvi film prikazivan na filmskim festivalima.

He graduated philosophy and sociology from the Faculty of philosophy in Zagreb where is now an undergraduate of comparative literature. He is also studying film and TV directing at the Academy of Dramatic Arts in Zagreb. 'Above Average' is his first film that has been shown on film festivals.

controversial dox

Kada smo počinjali sa ZagrebDoxom i počeli prikazivati 'kontroverzne dokumentarce' [tada se još nisu tako zvali], dvije su teme bile popularne - rat na prostorima bivše Jugoslavije i ... razni oblici neuobičajenih seksualnih preferencija i praksi.

Zbog onih smo prvih čak dovodili i zaštitare [nepotrebno, pokazalo se], a oni drugi su izazivali čuđenje, zazor i prije svega - znatiželju.

No, hrvatsko se društvo razvija i sazrijeva. I to mnogo brže nego što mnogi od nas vide. Na mjesto ratnih zločina i seksa dolaze globalni ekološki i ekonomski problemi, teorije zavjere i slične teme.

No, ipak ... najveći hit ovogodišnjeg kontroverznog programa bit će sigurno svjetska premijera filma 'U potrazi za Olujom' američkog Hrvata Jacka Barica koji se bavi sudbinom generala Gotovine i kompetentnošću Haškog tribunalala.

S druge strane, tu su i 'Secrecy' za ljubitelje zavjera, 'Za ljubav vode', ekološki, sjajno napravljen film o problemima trgovanja vodom, 'Tko se boji Kathy Acker', žestok film o jednako žestokoj heroini pokreta za prava žena, spisateljici, aktivistkinji ... dakle - za svakog ponešto.

Nenad Puhovski

When we were launching ZagrebDox and starting showing 'Controversial Documentaries' [they were not called that at the time], there were two popular topics - war in former Yugoslavia and various kinds unusual sexual preferences and practice.

The former made us hire security guards (although it turned out to be unnecessary) and the latter gave rise to surprise, aversion and - first of all - curiosity.

But Croatian society is developing and getting ever more matured - even much more than many of us can see. As objects of interest, war crimes and sex are being replaced by global ecological and economic problems, conspiracy theories and similar subjects.

And yet... the biggest hit of this year's Controversial Program will surely be the world premiere of 'In Search of the Storm' by Jack Baric, an American with Croatian roots. The film deals with the fate of General Ante Gotovina and the competency of The Hague Tribunal.

On the other hand, there is Secrecy for conspiracy-theory fans, 'Flow: For the Love of Water', a brilliant ecological film on water trade problems, 'Who's Afraid of Kathy Acker', a sharp film of an equally sharp heroine of women's rights movement, a writer and an activist... Obviously, there will be something for everyone.

Film je gorko-slatka posveta nekadašnjim članovima zagrebačkog ilegalnog antifašističkog pokreta, tijekom kojih su danas devedesetogodišnjacima. Tko se boji Kathy Acker?

'U potrazi za Olujom' dokumentarni je film koji postavlja pitanje je li UN kriv za to što se njegov medunački sud za ratne zločine koristi za opravdavanje neusklađenosti UN-a u ratu u bivšoj Jugoslaviji. Kritičari tvrde da UN-ov tribunal za ratne zločine u War Crimes Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia [ICTY] bivšoj Jugoslaviji [ICTY] pokušava konstruirati priču koja bi opravdala UN-ov poslijeratni stav da je sukob UN wartime position that the conflict in the Balkans na Balkanu bio građanski rat, a ne agresija srpskog was a civil war and not a war of aggression by Serbian predsjednika Slobodana Miloševića. Ta je optužba na predsjednika Slobodan Milošević. This charge is especially relevant to the current war crimes case of Croatian Anti Gotovini, optuženom za ratne zločine. Gotovina general Ante Gotovina, who has been indicted as a war hero in Croatia jer je predvodio Oluju, vojnu operaciju criminal by the UN court. Gotovina is a hero in Croatia raciju kojom je zemlja oslobođena nakon četiri godine for leading Operation Storm, a military operation that srpske okupacije. Međutim, neposredno nakon operacije liberated the country after four years of Serb occupancy počinjeni su mnogi zločini, a Gotovini se sudi zbog pansiona. However, many crimes were committed in the zapovjedne odgovornosti. Koristeći novije intervjuje i operation's aftermath and Gotovina is being tried as a arhivski materijal, film 'U potrazi za Olujom' preispituje war criminal for his command responsibility. Juxtapose UN-ovu politiku u vrijeme rata kako bi utvrdio je li for a Storm examines UN wartime policies to learn if Gotovina kriv ili je, možda, samo političko žrtvreno ja- they may have contributed to the war's tragedies and nje za UN-ove neuspjehove. the film asks if Gotovina is guilty or a political scapegoat.

Za ljubav vode

Prvi put prije mnogo godina, a onda od prilike do prilike, moje su kćeri, Sena i Tamara, ponavljale (najprije bojažljivo a onda i ljutito) jedno te isto pitanje: 'Tata, zašto ti uvijek radiš i prikazuješ samo ozbiljne, tužne i tragične filmove?'

Dok su bile male, mogao sam još nešto i izmišljati, ali onda su narasle, a pitanjima se priključila i ekipa Doxa ... doista, pripremajući, pregledavajući, prevodeći i titlajući desetke ozbiljnih, tužnih, dramatičnih, svjetsko-povijesnih i tragičnih filmova - ljudi su se počeli pitati - zar zaista nema dobrih a pozitivnih, možda čak i veselih dokumentaraca?

Ovogodišnji festival koji se događa u okruženju teške ekonomске i društvene krize bio je idealan za takav eksperiment. Odlučio sam pokušati...

Doista nije bilo lako ... pregledavši petstotinjak filmova, jedva sam odabrao ovih šest programa i nadam se (OK, gotovo sam siguran :)) da će se svidjeti gledateljima.

No, što to govori o nama dokumentaristima, našim filmovima, o svijetu u kojem živimo, o našoj publici?

Odlučan sam da nastavimo sa Happy Doxom, da promoviramo ovu ideju, uvedemo posebnu nagradu i stimuliramo autore da rade filmove koji se pozitivno odnose prema životu.

I to baš vremenima - usprkos!

Nenad Puhovski

First many years ago and then from time to time, my daughters Sena and Tamara would ask me (first timidly and later even angrily) the same question over and over again: 'Dad, why do you always make and show only serious, sad and tragic films?'

When they were little, I could make something up and get away with it, but then they grew up and the Zagreb-Dox crew joined them in these questions... Indeed, after having prepared, seen, translated and subtitled dozens of serious, sad, dramatic, epic and tragic documentaries, people started wondering - are there really no positive, maybe even joyful documentaries which are good enough at the same time?

Taking place in the middle of a major economic and social crisis, this year's festival was 'ideal' for such an experiment. So I decided to give it a try...

And it wasn't easy... having gone through some five hundred films, I barely managed to select these six and I hope (OK, I'm pretty sure :)) that the viewers will like them. But, what does this say about us documentarists, our films, the world we live in, our audience?

I have strongly decided to go on with Happy Dox, to promote this idea and to introduce a special award, stimulating authors to make films with positive attitude about life.

In spite of the times!!

'Supermen of Malegaon' prati manju skupinu ljudi 'Supermen of Malegaon' follows a small group of people from the hinterland of India, for whom the fantasy associated with film has become the currency with which they buy their sanity, the irrepressible nature of their spirit. Malegaon, tucked away near the heart of India is fraught with communal tension, unemployment and economic depression. Yet it houses a tiny film industry. Having begun with tributes, the industry now churns out quirky, low-budget, socially aware, no-budget films and documentaries. Their ambition has grown; they are ready to take on Superman. We follow them on this journey. At times funny, tragic, contemplative. Always warm and engaging.

социјал kapitalizam

Naklade Marxovih djela u posljednje vrijeme dosežu brojke mekoukoričenih hitova; ozbiljni analitičari govoru o kraju liberalnog kapitalizma, anarhistički gnjev valja se ulicama grčkih gradova, ostarjeli šezdesetosmaši ozbiljno (a kako drugačije) klimaju glavom 'pa rekli smo vam...'

Jedno društvo, ono (kako bi ga Slobodan Novak podrugljivo nazvao) 'skjalističko' nije, na čudo mnogih, definitivno preminulo ... ono drugo, koje ga je došlo zamijeniti, ne osjeća se baš najbolje ovih dana...

Što se to, do vraka, događa?

Filmski festival svakako nije mjesto na kojem treba tražiti ozbiljne, znanstvene ili definitivne odgovore na to pitanje. No, filmovi koje prikazujemo, prije svega film 'Let's make money' prikazuju svijet u kojem živimo na način koji, u najmanju ruku, izaziva zebnju.

Jer što reći kad lik iz tog filma, nakon konstatacije da se više od 13 trilijuna dolara nalazi na privatnim off-shore računima, mirno kaže u kameru: možda je i novac vašeg mirovinskog fonda u našem portfelju?

Nenad Puhovski

Since recently, the works of Karl Marx have started selling as well as soft-cover bestsellers; prominent analysts talk about the end of liberal capitalism; anarchists' rage has flooded the streets of Greek cities; aged 'sixty-eighters' seriously (how else) nod their heads as if they say 'We told you...'.

And yet, to the surprise of many, one system, the 'skjalistički' (as Slobodan Novak would mock), has not passed away for good and the other one that has come to replace it does not feel well these days...

What the hell is going on?

A film festival is certainly not a place where serious, scientific or definite answers to this question should be sought. However, the films that we screen, primarily 'Let's Make Money', show the world we live in in the way that it makes one feel anxiety, at least.

Because, how should one react when a character in this film, having asserted that over USD 13 trillion are deposited on private off-shore accounts, phlegmatically says to the camera: 'Maybe the assets of your pension fund are also in our portfolio?'

Nenad Puhovski

Rubljovka je glavna cesta koja povezuje lokomotivu raskrijevačku s Moskvom s ruskim provincijom. U svim je vremenskim razdobljima, od vremena carova do današnjih predsednika, Rubljovka je bila privlačna za vladajuću klasu i elitu: careve, diktatoren, predsjednici. Naravno, i današnji šef države Putin živi onđe. Prema legendi, Putin se smatra synonymous with wealth, social ascent and decadence. Ne čudi stoga to što je Rubljovka straga čuvana dent lifestyles. No wonder Rubljovka is a strictly guarded area, where many things are kept secret, hidden up and kept under wraps. In spite of grudgingly issued filming permits, the film team was constantly harassed and threatened by the Russian security services FSB, traffic police and each and every security contractor. Mnogi su dijelovi filma snimljeni skrivenom kamerom. Nevertheless, the film was completed.

Zaradimo lov

globus music globe

Sljubiti dvije divote u jednu te tako podebljati užitak formula je istinske delicije. Vjerujem da je ista formula u pitanju kada treba pružiti valjano objašnjenje iznimne popularnosti žanra glazbenog dokumentarca. U dobroj namjeri i poštujući želje svoje publike, 5. ZagrebDox ponavlja program Glazbeni globus, no ovaj put s nekim drugim protagonistima.

'Patti Smith - san o životu' kontemplira na temu života, djela i filozofije kultne i karizmatične pjevačice koju je za potrebe ove posebne priče redatelj Steven Sebring pratio čak jedanaest godina.

Dobar dio Glazbenog globusa posvećen je raspjevanim ruskim junacima; 'Rock monolog' približit će nam legendu ruskog underground rocka sedamdesetih i osamdesetih godina - Jurija Morozova. Upoznajući Morozova, upoznat ćemo i rusku stvarnost tih godina, ponajprije onu u kojoj su se umjetnici nemilice proganjali i cenzurirali.

Sergej Šnurov frontmen je ska pank benda Leningrad, junačina je među ruskom radničkom klasom, a film 'Leningrad - čovjek koji pjeva' priča koliko o njemu toliko i o životu u današnjoj Rusiji.

Pravu adrenalinsku i vrlo glasnu glazbenu avanturu pruža dox 'Dio vikenda nikada ne umire' u čijem je epi-centru genijani belgijski bend/dj kolektiv Soulwax/2ManyDJ's.

Glazbeno putovanje globusom završavamo u Danskoj, na vikingškom otoku Zealand, gdje se svake godine održava jedan od najvećih glazbenih festivala u Europi – Roskilde. Doživite ga kroz koncerete bendova Franz Ferdinand, Placebo, The Streets, Editors, Sonic Youth... I vratite nam se sljedeće godine!

Blending two great things into one and thus increasing pleasure is a formula of a true delicacy. I believe this is the formula that could explain the exceptional popularity of the musical documentary genre. In good faith and respecting the wishes of its audience, the 5th ZagrebDox has prepared Musical Globe program again, although this time with some other protagonists.

'Patti Smith: Dream of Life' contemplates about the life, work and philosophy of an iconic and charismatic singer; the director Steven Sebring has been filming her for as long as eleven years.

A large portion of Musical Globe is dedicated to the singing Russian heroes: 'The Rock Monologue' will introduce to us the legend of Russian underground rock of the 1970s and '80s – Yuri Morozov. While getting to know Morozov, we will get to know Russian reality of those days, primarily the one in which artists were brutally persecuted and censored.

Sergey Shnurov is the frontman of the ska punk band Leningrad; he is a hero of Russia's working class and 'The Man Who Sings' talks about him as much as it talks about life in the present-day Russia.

Full of adrenalin, 'Part of the Weekend Never Die's offers us a true musical adventure: the film focuses on the brilliant Belgian band/collective Soulwax/2ManyDJ's.

We will end this musical trip around the globe in Denmark, on the Vikings' island of Zealand, where Roskilde – one of the largest musical festivals in Europe – takes place every year. Experience it through the concerts of Franz Ferdinand, Placebo, The Streets, Editors, Sonic Youth... And come back next year!

Jon Alpert retrospektiva

Jon Alpert -
a Retrospective

Jon Alpert
novinar i filmski redatelj

Jon Alpert ostvario je karijeru nagrađivanog novinara, dugogodišnjeg pedagoga i aktivista u zajednici. Dobio je jedanaest nagrada Emmy za reportaže i dokumentarne emisije i osnivač je prvog neprofitnog medijskog obrazovnog centra u Sjedinjenim Državama – Downtown Community Television Center (DCTV), na newyorškom Manhattanu 1972. godine.

Između 1974. i 1979. godine, Alpert je bio koproducent pet jednosatnih dokumentaraca za javnu televiziju. Prvi od njih, pod naslovom 'Cuba: The People', bio je prva američka televizijska reportaža o Kubi nakon deset godina. New York Times je Alpertov film proglašio jednom od najboljih televizijskih produkcija u SAD-u te godine. Njegova nagrađena reportaža o Vijetnamu iz 1977. godine, pod naslovom 'Vietnam: Picking Up The Pieces', bila je prva o Vijetnamu koju je radila neka američka TV ekipa nakon rata. Godine 1976. dobio je tri DuPont-Columbia pohvale i nagradu Christopher za svoj film 'Chinatown: Immigrants in America'.

Alpert je počeo raditi za NBC 1979. godine, a prvi posao bili su mu materijali o pograničnim ratovima između Vijetnama i Kine. Tokom idućih desetak godina, Alpertove istraživačke reportaže, montaža i snimateljski rad osvojili su dojmljiv niz nagrada i rezultirali brojnim ekskluzivama. Kad je Fidel Castro došao održati govor u Ujedinjenim narodima, Alpert i njegova ekipa bili su jedini ne-Kubanci koji su mu mogli pristupiti. Bio je u Kini za vrijeme masakra na Tiananmenu i, glumeći turista, izvještavao iz dijelova zemlje koji su bili nedostupni drugim reporterima. Alpertove reportaže iz Zaljevskog rata donijele su mu Talijansku nagradu za mir koju mu je dodijelio talijanski predsjednik. Jedini je reporter koji je intervjuirao Saddama Husseina nakon Zaljevskog rata. Sve u svemu, Alpertov rad za NBC rezultirao je s ukupno sedam Emmyja, pet nagrada Monitor, nagradom Clio i nagradom Gabriel. I dalje je jedini reporter – dobitnik Emmyja - koji je nagrađivan i za montažni i snimateljski rad.

Posljednjih godina Alpert za HBO radi seriju istraživačkih dokumentaraca, uključujući 'Lock-up: The Prisoner of Rikers Island', koji je dobio pohvale kritičara imao i gledanost veću od bilo kojeg drugog HBO-ovog dokumentarca. Njegov 'High on Crack Street - Lost Lives in Lowell' iz 1995. godine pozdravljen je kao najbolji dosad snimljeni dokumentarni film protiv droge. Njime je Alpert treći put osvojio nagradu DuPont-Columbia. Nedavno je dobio i nekoliko Emmyja za 'Baghdad ER', cijenjeni HBO-ov dokumentarac koji je ujedno i dobitnik nagrade George Foster Peabody.

Uza sav taj svjetski uspjeh, Alpert je ostao predan DCTV-u i njegovoј misiji promicanja snage i raznolikosti medija osposobljavanjem neovisnih producenata čiji umjetnički ili kulturni korijeni leže u zajednici. DCTV-ov program za mladež koja pripada manjinskim skupinama transformirao je bivše propale učenike u student-ske majstore videa koji osvajaju brojne festivalske nagrade i počasti. Ne čudi onda što je gradonačelnikov ured DCTV-ove programe nazvao 'najboljima u gradu'.

journalist and filmmaker

Jon Alpert has distinguished himself as an award-winning journalist and a life-long educator and community activist. He has received eleven National Emmy Awards for news and documentary programs and founded the premier not-for-profit media education center in the United States, Downtown Community Television Center (DCTV) in lower Manhattan in 1972.

Between 1974 and 1979, Alpert co-produced five one-hour documentaries for public television. The earliest, entitled 'Cuba: The People', presented the first American television coverage inside Cuba in ten years. The New York Times selected Alpert's work as one of the best television productions in the country that year. His 1977 award-winning piece on Vietnam, called 'Vietnam: Picking Up The Pieces', marked the first time an American TV crew had filmed in Vietnam since the war. In 1976, he won one of his three DuPont-Columbia Citations and The Christopher Award for his work 'Chinatown: Immigrants in America'.

Alpert began contributing to NBC in 1979 with his coverage of the Vietnam-China Border Wars. Over the next dozen years Alpert's investigative reporting, editing, and camera work earned an impressive string of awards and scoops. When Fidel Castro came to address the United Nations, Alpert and his team were the only non-Cubans allowed access to Castro. He was in China during the Tiananmen Square Massacre, and by posing as a tourist, reported from parts of the country off-limits to other reporters. Alpert's Gulf War news reports won the Italian Peace Prize awarded by the President of Italy. He is the only reporter to have interviewed Saddam Hussein after the Gulf War. Altogether, Alpert's work with NBC earned a total of seven National Emmy Awards, five Monitor Awards, the Clio Award, and the Gabriel Award. He remains the only Emmy-winning reporter to be also honored in the editing and camerawork craft categories as well.

In recent years, Alpert has worked with HBO to produce a series of investigative documentaries including 'Lock-up: The Prisoners of Rikers Island,' which won critical acclaim and the highest ratings of any HBO documentary. In 1995, 'High on Crack Street - Lost Lives in Lowell' was hailed as the best anti-drug documentary ever made. It won Alpert's third DuPont-Columbia Award. He was recently honored for with several Emmy Awards for 'Baghdad ER', an acclaimed HBO documentary that also won a George Foster Peabody Award.

Throughout these many global successes, Alpert has remained committed to DCTV and its mission of promoting strength and diversity in the media by empowering independent producers whose artistic or cultural roots are based in the community. DCTV's programs for minority youth have transformed former drop-outs into student video champions winning an array of festival awards and honors. It is no wonder that the Mayor's office called DCTV's programs 'the best in the City.'

Lady Volunteers, ženska košarkaška ekipa Sveučilišta u Tennesseeju i pobjednik američkog nacionalnog prvenstva 1996. godine, činila se spremnom za pobjedu. The University of Tennessee's Lady Volunteers seemed poised to contend for the trophy again. But half-way through the 1997 season, the team were not living up to their promise. They were losing almost every game of the season. Injury to a star player, Kelcey Jolly, didn't help. It seemed that even the remarkable efforts of Chamique Holdsclaw would not keep the team from falling apart. Could this team really win again? danja. Jesu li djevojke u stanju ponovno pobijediti?

Život u zločinu 2

suvremeni izraelski dokumentarac - retrospektiva

*contemporary israeli dox
- a retrospective*

David Fisher
redatelj i producent

Dokumentarni filmovi današnjice arhiva su sutrašnjice. Filmovi koji se snimaju danas postat će blago za generacije koje dolaze. Svake se godine u Izraelu snimi oko 60 dokumentara; ti filmovi prikazuju 60 različitih lica današnjeg izraelskog društva.

Pedeset i više godina od danas, kad se od povjesničara bude tražilo da opišu današnji Izrael, oni će se morati poslužiti velikim brojem sjajnih izraelskih dokumentarnih filmova snimljenih u posljednjih nekoliko godina. Uz svoju tradicionalnu ulogu dobrog filmaša, izraelski je dokumentarist ujedno i povjesničar, antropolog, a u većini slučajeva i strog i temeljit društveni kritičar. Načinom na koji portretira predmet svoje priče i tumačenjem događaja koje dokumentira kamerom, redatelj sudjeluje u stvaranju izraelske povijesti koja predstavlja alternativu službenoj povijesti.

Dokumentarni filmovi koji se danas snimaju u Izraelu kao da su antiteza angažiranim filmovima karakterističnim za rano doba te zemlje.

U ranim danima, autori dokumentarnih filmova dobrovoljno su služili velikom cionističkom projektu i bili su njegovi glasnogovornici.

Samo 30-40 godina kasnije, izraelski je filmski autor postao oštar kritičar izraelskog društva. Njegovi filmovi otkrivaju skrivene kutove društva i zahtijevaju od gledatelja da pogledaju u zrcalo koje ponekad pokazuje Izrael u nimalo laskavu svjetlu, svjetlu koje zahtijeva temeljit popravak.

Osim toga, filmovi o ranim danima zemlje snimani su s namjerom uvjerenja, jer je zadatak bio snimati filmove o 'važnim' temama. Današnji filmovi govore o mjestima, o osobama, i nisu nužno politički ili društveno angažirani. Kod njih se ne radi jednostavno o 'dobroj temi', već o jedinstvenoj, osobnoj i suočajnoj metodi autora. Izraelski filmaši usvojili su shvaćanje da važnost dobra dokumentarca nije svetinja, jer film mora postojati još godinama, ne samo zbog svoje prvobitne vrijednosti. I zaista, uloga je dokumentarnog filma poniranje u društvo iz čiste radoznalosti i redefiniranje njegove uloge, no važno je ispitati i stvoriti filmski jezik.

Dokumentarni filmovi ne mogu i ne smiju željeti objektivnost; stoga su najbolji dokumentarci oni koji pokazuju stav ili jasnu poruku redatelja.

Dokumentarist je ponajprije umjetnik koji mora fascinirati publiku svojom sposobnošću strpljivog i vještog pričanja priče. Dobar je dokumentarist onaj koji stvara osjećajni, poetski ili intelektualni doživljaj i ne usredotočuje se nužno samo na pokušaj davanja informacije.

U Izraelu se vijesti emitiraju najmanje jednom na sat. Takvo nastojanje konzumiranja vijesti svakog sata vidljivo je u nekim izraelskim dokumentarcima, u kojima se u redateljevo pripovijedanje često ubacuju ulomci iz televizijskih vijesti. Tako se ta navika redovita konzumiranja vijesti infiltrira u dokumentarne filmove, kao i u druge aspekte života u Izraelu. Kako su i redatelj i gledatelji u Izraelu naviknuti na neprekidno informiranje, može se reći da su i oni žrtve nasilja, zauvijek u neskladu s izraelskom stvarnošću.

retrospektiva izraelskih dokumentarnih filmova - zagreb 2009

Čini se da taj jaz između svakodnevne realnosti na vijestima i eškapističkog svijeta reality showa, gdje se uspjeh lako može koreografirati, često postaje tlo na kojem cvjeta izraelski dokumentarni film, prostor u kojem on nalazi svoje teme i svoj stil.

Dokumentarni filmovi pomno se bave i raspravljaju o različitim društvenim temama kao što su ratne priče, sukobi, nasilje i umjetnost.

Koja je tajna uspjeha dokumentarnog filma? Njihovi autori zadržavaju nezavisni duh i ne pokušavaju imitirati. Kad promatramo sebe, prikazujemo istinitu sliku. No, to nije slučaj kada pokušavamo imitirati strana društva Amerike i Europe.

Naši dokumentarci autentična su i vjerodostojna manifestacija blistave izraelske kulture; ti filmovi redovito izazivaju značajlu i interes izvan Izraela i učinkovito prenose otvoreno i kreativno okružje života u Izraelu. Koproducijski odnosi između Izraela i ostatka svijeta sve su intenzivniji. Inozemne producijske kuće, filmski fundusi i televizije pokazale su da imaju sluha za rad izraelskih dokumentarista i ja sam uvjeren da se sada prilikom pruža još većem broju njih – kako mladima, tako i veteranim.

Odabratи samo nekoliko filmova koji bi predstavili izraelsku dokumentarnu kinematografiju u posljednjih 20 godina bio je težak zadatak. Filmovi uključeni u ovu retrospektivu predstavljaju, svaki na svoj način, 'pozadinu' izraelske stvarnosti i identiteta. Svaki od ovih filmova priča složenu priču o životu u toj nemirnoj regiji s privatnog i jedinstvenog gledišta, kojega javnost vrlo vjerojatno ne bi bila svjesna da ti filmovi nisu proizvedeni.

Htio bih zahvaliti zagrebačkom festivalu na pozivu i prilici koja mi se pruža da predstavim suvremenii izraelski dokumentarni film. Uvjeren sam da će za vas, publiku, to biti snažno i izazovno iskustvo.

David Fisher

Izraelski redatelj i producent. Njegov hvaljeni film 'Ljubavni inventar' bit će prikazan u okviru retrospektive izraelskih filmova. Posljednjih devet godina glavni je direktor Nove izraelske zaklade za film i televiziju. U tom svojstvu zaslužan je za uspjeh izraelskih dokumentaraca u Izraelu i širom svijeta.

Retrospektivu suvremenog izraelskog dokumentarnog filma pripremili su Nova izraelska fondacija za kino & TV i vodeći izraelski sineast David Fisher.

director and producer

Today's documentary films are the archive of tomorrow. The films that are being made here today will become a treasure for generations to come. Each year about 60 Israeli documentaries are being made; these films offer 60 different faces of Israeli society today.

Fifty years and more from now, when historians will be asked to describe today's Israel, they would have to refer to the significant body of work of great Israeli documentary films that were made in the past few years. The Israeli Documentary filmmaker, beyond his traditional roll as a skilled filmmaker, is also a historian, an anthropologist, and in most cases a harsh and profound social critic. In the way of which the filmmaker portrays his narrative, in the interpretation he gives to the events he documents with his camera, he takes part in creating an alternative to the country's history as it is written by the official authorities.

The documentary films that are being made in Israel today are seemingly the antithesis to the recruited films typical to the country's early days.

If in the early days of Israel the documentary filmmaker volunteered to serve the great Zionist act and turn into its spokesperson.

Only 30 to 40 years later, that filmmaker became a sharp critic of the Israeli society. His films expose hidden corners of the society and ask the viewers to take a look at a mirror that sometimes shows Israel in a very unflattering light, a light which demands profound repair.

In addition, the films of the country's early days were made with the intent to preach, out of the mandate to create films about 'important' subjects. In the films being made today there is a story of a place, or of a person, they are not necessarily a political or a social case. It is not simply about a 'good subject' but rather about the unique, personal and caring cinematic method of the filmmaker.

The Israeli filmmaker assimilated the idea that the relevancy of a good documentary is not sacred since a film must continue to exist for years and not just because of its primal validity. Indeed, the role of a documentary is to delve into society out of sheer curiosity and redefine over and over again its role, but it is important to examine and create a cinematic language.

Documentary films cannot and must not claim objectivity; therefore, the best documentaries include a stand or a clear statement of the director.

The documentary filmmaker is first and foremost an artist that must fascinate the audience with the ability to patiently and skillfully tell a story. A good documentary is one that creates an emotional, poetical or intellectual experience and not necessarily concentrates on attempting to simply provide information.

In Israel, the news is broadcast at least once every hour. This tendency to consume news every hour on the hour is evident in some Israeli documentaries, where within the narration and testimony of the director, excerpts from TV news reports are frequently embedded. Thus, this conditioning for regular news consumption infiltrates documentary films, much as it does other aspects of life in Israel. Since both the director and the viewers in Israel are conditioned to be constantly informed and updated, it can be said they are both victims of violence, forever in dissonance with Israeli reality.

israeli documentaries retrospective in zagreb - 2009

It seems this leap between the daily reality of the news and the escapist world of reality shows, where success is easily choreographed, often becomes the ground in which Israeli documentary cinema flourishes, the space in which it operates, both in terms of theme and style.

Documentary films carefully discuss, touch and deal with different aspects of society such as war stories, conflicts, violence and art.

What is the secret of success of documentary cinema? The filmmakers maintain an independent spirit and do not make an effort to imitate.

When we look at ourselves we present a true picture. It is not the case when we are trying to imitate the foreign worlds of America and Europe.

Our documentaries are an authentic and truthful manifestation of Israel's vibrant culture; these films consequently provoke a lot of curiosity and interest outside of Israel and efficiently transport the open and creative environment of the Israeli existence.

The coproduction relations between Israel and the rest of the world are progressively expanding. Israeli filmmakers have found an echo to their work within the production companies, film funds and broadcasting bodies abroad and I am convinced that this road is now open to more filmmakers - both young and veterans.

Selecting only a few films to represent the best of Israeli documentary filmmaking in the past 20 years was a challenging task. The films included in this retrospective present, each in its own way, the 'behind the scenes' of Israeli reality and identity. Each of these films tells a complex story of life in this torn region from a private and unique point of view, that may very well have remained suppressed from the public's view and consciousness had the films not been produced.

I would like to thank the festival in Zagreb for the invitation and the opportunity to present contemporary Israeli documentary cinema. I am convinced that for you, the audience, this would be an enriching and challenging experience.

David Fisher

Israeli director and producer. His acclaimed film 'Love Inventory' will be screened in the framework of the Israeli retrospective. In the past 9 years he served as the director general of the New Israeli Foundation for cinema and TV. In this capacity he was the driving force behind the success of Israeli documentaries in Israel and worldwide.

The retrospective of modern Israeli documentary film was prepared by the New Israeli Foundation for Cinema & TV and leading Israeli film maker David Fisher.

Film 'Djeca sunca' prikazuje nam legendarni svijet izraelskog projekta kibucu s prilično neistražena gledišta. 'Children of the Sun', shows us the storied world of the Israeli kibbutz movement from a largely unexplored period - onog prve generacije djece rođene u kibucima koja je proživjela gotovo cijeli svoj život. Prvi stanovnički su bili rođeni u kibucima i živjeli su u njihovim životima. The earliest inhabitants of the collective were born on the kibbutzim and lived there for most of their lives. The earliest inhabitants of the collective had high hopes for a better way of life, in accordance with the new ideas they were exposed to. They were destined to become the 'New Man,' the new face of the Jewish people. Oblivious to the high stakes placed on their existence, the children simply grew up, gradually absorbing the concepts impressed upon them. Their parents spent time with them once a day but left primary care to nan postajala obitelj. Ne posjedujući nikakvu materijalnu nies. The children became their own family. Denied material possessions, they threw themselves into the unpaid work of the kibbutzim and ceremonial rites of passage expected of them.

Ran Tal je rođen u kibucu Beit Hashita u Izraelu. Studirao je filmsku i TV režiju na Sveučilištu u Tel Avivu. Režirao je nekoliko kratkih i cjelovečernjih dokumentara i igranih filmova. Kratki filmovi: 'Merchant of Lies' and 'Feelings' (1994), '67 Ben Tsvi Road' (1998) i 'Prosthetic' (1999). Cjelovečernji filmovi: 'My Dream House' (2005) and 'Children of the Sun' (2007).

Film se događa u belgijskom Antverpenu, gradu u kojem je redatelj rođen. U njemu se odvija priča o bolnom odnosu između redatelja i njegove 87-godišnje majke. Sin cijeli život pati zbog tišine koja vlada u njezinom domu, a ona, starica od 87 godina, nije mogla izjaviti da je živjela u holokaustu. Film se ponovo uspostavlja dobar odnos, film se dotiče porodice. The film takes place in Antwerp, Belgium, the city where the director was born. In it unfolds the story of the painful relationship existing between his mother, aged eighty-seven, and himself, the son who suffered from the silence which reigned in the house he grew up in. Beyond the depiction of a relationship between a mother and son seeking restoration, the film touches upon the wider questions of parentchild relationships, memory, guilt, and old age, against the backdrop of World War II and its effects upon the lives of its survivors.

retrospektiva hrvatskog neprofesiskog dokumentarnog filma

*croatian non-professional documentary film –
a retrospective*

Hrvoje Turković
selektor programa retrospektive hrvatskog neprofesionalnog
dokumentarnog filma

Polazno, u dvadesetim i osobito tridesetim godinama prošloga stoljeća razlika između profesionalnog i 'amaterskog filma' u Hrvatskoj nije uopće bila u 'profesionalnosti', tj. u stručnosti filmskoga rada, nego tek u profesijskom, zaposleničkom, statusu filmaša – je li im rad na filmu središnje životno zaposlenje, ili im je samo svojevrstan 'hobi' – okupacija za slobodno vrijeme koje pojedinci imaju od središnjeg zaposlenja. Amaterski dokumentarni film, ali i drugi filmski rodovi (recimo,igrani filmovi Oktavijana Miletića), u tim je desetljećima imao dosege posve ravnopravne (ponegdje i superiorne) ondašnjem institucijskom, profesijski rađenom filmu..

Naime, filmska djelatnost 'kinoamatera' u Hrvatskoj javila se s početkom dvadesetih godina. Razmjerno brzo, a što je indikacija dosta ne proširenosti pojedinaca s amaterskim kamerama i radom, amateri su se društveno samoorganizirali 1928. godine u 'kinosekciju' tada jakog Foto kluba Zagreb, a sedam godina potom (1936.) ta se kinosekcija osamostalila u Klub kinoamatera Zagreb. Iako su se amateri organizirali baš u glavnome gradu, Zagrebu, amatera-pojoedinaca bilo i drugdje po Hrvatskoj i oni su sudjelovali na festivalima amaterskog filma i drugim kinonatjecanjima, prisutni u javnome životu...

To se krilo neprofesijskih filmaša ponosno nazvalo 'amaterima' jer su ga tvorili pripadnici dobrostojećeg i uglednog srednjeg i višeg sloja građana, onih koji su se filmu posvetili isključivo 'iz ljubavi', kao ljudi zaraženi novom tehnologijom, fascinacijom koju je donosio filmski svijet i filmsko bavljenje svjetom. To su bili ljudi dovoljno bogati da im nije bilo problemom nabaviti tadašnju uvedenu uskovrpčanu amatersku filmsku tehniku (9,5 mm filmsku kameru, pribor, filmsku vrpcu) i koji su imali dovoljno slobodna vremena da se sustavno posvete svojemu omiljenom (i vrlo ozbilnjom) hobiju: da se sustavno tehnološki i djelatno obrazuju, da prate tehnološke novitete, da rade vlastite filmove iskušavajući različite stilove i rodove, da se sastaju i diskutiraju, organiziraju festivale...

Kako se u to vrijeme hrvatsko proizvodno krilo profesionalne kinematografije još uvijek može držati 'pionirskim' – jer nije bilo institucionalno stabilne proizvodnje ni nekog vezanog stilskog razvoja, nego je sve ovisilo o individualnim dosezima i prigodama – stručnost, tj. tehnološka i stilska upućenost kinoamatera bila je uglavnom ravna stručnosti onih ljudi koji su se profesionalno posvetili filmu i od njega živjeli, a društveni status mnogih amatera čak i ugledniji (bili su liječnici, pravnici, poduzetnici, inženjeri, plemenitaši...). Uostalom, kad je zatrebalo, amateri su pozivani da, kao ospozobljeni filmaši, povremeno izrade i naručene filmove, dakle radili su profesionalno, a poneki su vremenom i postajali profesionalnim filmašima (npr. Oktavijan Miletić).

Spomenuti Oktavijan Miletić i nešto stariji stomatolog Maksimilijan Paspa bili su ujedno i najistaknutiji amaterski filmaši iz dvadesetih i tridesetih godina (odnosno oni o kojima je povjesno sjećanje jako, a filmovi očuvani i raspoloživi za provjeru). Oba nisu mogla odoljeti, kao ni drugi amateri, da – imajući vlastitu kameru – ne bilježe svoju vlastitu obitelj, prijatelje, svećane prigode... pa su time uhodali ono što profesionalni film zadugo nije mogao zamisliti da mu je dopustivo: obiteljski, privatni film, film natopljen personalnim referencama i sa-

svim osobnim pristupom. Uzimanje filma kao oblika uspostave personalnog odnosa prema svijetu, kao iskaza što ne skriva već otkriva svojeg autora i njegovu privatnost, ostalo je obilježavajućom stilskom strujom što teče kroz ukupnu povijest amaterskog filmovanja, poslije i kao samosvjesna 'umjetnička' dominantu.

No, istodobno, važan, a možda i glavni razlog zašto su se amaterski bavili filmom i nije bio u tome da samo bilježe vlastitu obitelj i prigodne događaje, nego da se uključe u ono što je film dominantno činio: bilježio svijet dokumentacijski i zamišljajno, a to su nastojali činiti kao društveno legitimiran, potencijalno javan čin, kao ono što valja pokazati svijetu. Njihove dokumentarističke, a kod Miletića, i satirične zabilješke o hrvatskim krajolicima, sajmovima, folklornim temama i važnijim društvenim događajima... bitnim su dijelom povjesne dokumentacije, ali i svjedočanstvom opisno-izlagačkog standarda hrvatskog dokumentarizma između dvaju robova. I ova crta – uključivanje u obrasce dominantne kinematografije, prinosa njima – ostala je trajno prisutna: velik se dio amatera u našoj povijesti doista težio pridružiti modelu filmovanja koji je profesionalno dominirao, nastojali su biti, barem po filmovima, nerazlučivim dijelom dominantnog filmskog stvaralaštva. Često s uspjehom, često ne, a tako sve do današnjeg dana.

Kinoklupski pokret pedesetih i šezdesetih godina – 'umjetnički' dokumentarizam

Dok je privatni i samoorganizirani amaterizam prije Drugog svjetskog rata postojao kao djelatnost paralelna i ravноправna profesionalnoj, stvari su se prilično izmjenile u socijalističkom razdoblju nakon Drugoga svjetskog rata, u razdoblju državno uredene kinematografije Socijalističke Federativne Republike Jugoslavije.

Činilo se da je prva promjena u korist amaterizma. Naime, u novom, socijalističkom, društvenom uređenju širenje amaterizma postalo je političkim programom: sustavno su se počeli osnivati kinoklubovi po Hrvatskoj kao provedba programa 'širenja kulture u narodu', odnosno ideje 'tehnika narodu', te je kinoamaterizam postao pristupačan svima zainteresiranim, ne samo dobrostojećim građanima (kojih je tada rapidno nestajalo). Kinoklubovi su osiguravali neku tehniku, filmsku vrpcu, njezinu laboratorijsku obradu, u njih se mogao upisati svatko tko je bio zainteresiran za film, tu se putem tečajeva stjecalo temeljno djelatno filmsko obrazovanje i njegovalo se aktivno snimanje filmova. Iako su prve novoosnovane klubove organizirali pretežito stariji ('predratni') amateri koji su polazno imali svoju tehniku, u njih su ubrzo počeli pritjecati mladi članovi, studenti, ili tek završeni studenti, čak i gimnazijalci (a osnivali su se i dječji kinoklubovi) koristeći klupske tehničke usluge. No, ironijski, 'demokratizacija' amaterizma povukla je i njegovo sustavno 'deklasiranje'. Naime, amaterizam je ovim specijaliziranim i programiranim klupskim tipom organizacije postao svojevrsnim kinematografskim (i socijalnim) 'rezervatom' – amaterska 'kinematografija' nije se računala u 'ozbiljnu kinematografiju', amateri su držani 'neprofesionalcima', a njihovi filmovi područjem samorazumljivog 'diletantizma', prihvatljivog samo u granicama 'rezervata', ali ne i na terenu 'ozbiljne', odnosno 'prave' (profesionalne) kinematografije. Taj je odnos dijelom bio uvjetovan i početničkim profesionalizmom dominantne kinematografije te javnom (kritičarskom, ali i unutarstrukovnom) borbom oko uspostavljanja svjetski važećih tehničkih i stilskih normi u rastućoj filmskoj industriji. Dok su profesionalci podlijegali obaveznim normativnim zahtjevima, nije se držalo da ti zahtjevi obvezuju i amatera, nego da za njih vrijede samo fakultativno, po osobnom izboru i ambiciji pojedinog amatera. Granica između obvezujućih (profesionalnih) i onih neobvezujućih ('amaterskih') uvjeta filmskoga rada postala je i društveno statusna razdjelnica, ona koja je profesionalce oštro dijelila od amatera i davala im automatski privilegiran društveni i strukovni status u odnosu na amatera.

No ovaj 'rezervatski' položaj amaterizma, izuzet iz 'profesionalnih' normi, otvorio je mladim amaterima izglede koji su u dominantnoj profesionalnoj kinematografiji bili neusporedivo zakočeniji, politički pod većom kontrolom. Naime, marginalnost i rezervatski status amaterizma tolerirao je ne samo 'neprofesionalnost', nego i 'neozbiljnost' – otvarao je mogućnost da u tim uvjetima zaigrana mladež sebi dopusti individualne 'nekonvencionalnosti', individualne 'poizvoljnosti' i u odnosu na dominantne oblike filmovanja i u odnosu na proklamirane vrijednosti (i one ideoološke i one estetičke). Klupska i amaterska sredina tako je dobila mogućnost da se slobodnije razvija u sredinu prilično neovisna, individualizirana, subkulturalna stvaralaštva, svojevrsnu 'alternativu' dominantnoj kinematografiji.

A ta se mogućnost ubrzo stvarno i 'iskoristila'. Ona je samosvjesno artikulirana u drugoj polovici pedesetih, a osobito u šezdesetim godinama. Bilo je to vrijeme postupna uvođenja liberalnije komunističke politike u bivšoj Jugoslaviji pa su taj liberalizacijski trend koristili umjetnici i intelektualci te programski počeli raditi u duhu i pod utjecajem tada snažnog svjetskog (uglavnom zapadnjačkog) pokreta modernizma, njegove avangardičke grane. Od ranije prisutne romantičarske predodžbe o umjetnosti kao individualnoj ekspresiji umjetnika, prisutne od ranog modernizma s početka dvadesetog stoljeća i u Hrvatskoj, oživjele su tijekom pedesetih, a postale izričito glasnim u šezdesetima.

Renesansa modernizma bila je nešto lakša u 'individualnim umjetnostima', onima u kojima su umjetnici stvarali kod kuće, u ateljeima i mogli se na tim mjestima i sastajati – u književnosti, slikarstvu, glazbi, odnosno među umjetničkim kritičarima. Mnogo je bila teža u 'kolektivnoj umjetnosti' kakva je bio profesionalni, institucijski film, jer je taj bio i daleko pomnije ideološki nadziran i samonadziran, a i još uvjek pod dojmom potrebe mjerodavnije 'zanatske', profesionalne normizacije. Tako je upravo amaterizam sa svojom rezervatskom opuštenošću, društvenom i političkom 'marginalnošću', a opet i s prevladavajuće individualnim radom na filmu (filmove bi snimao i obradivao pojedini amater, tu i tamo u suradnji s malim društvom kolega) postao mjestom rana prodora modernizma u film.

Modernističke ambicije osobito su bile prisutne u mladih filmaša što su prilazili kinoklubovima. Oni su u kinoklubove najčešće i dolazili s već artikuliranim shvaćanjem filma kao nadasve umjetničke djelatnosti sa samozražajnim zadacima. Snimanje tipičnih dokumentarističkih motiva – etnografsko-prirodnih sredina, starih urbanih cjelina, umjetničkih djela, ali i neposredna životnog ambijenta prema kojemu čovjek ima produbljen odnos – nastojalo se utemeljiti na naglašeno osobnom promatračkom i općedoživljajnom senzibilitetu autora, učiniti očitovanjem njegove opservacijsko-meditativne osjetljivosti. Filmovi su težili biti pomno slikovno kadri-rani, montirani tako da izoštire vizualnu osjetljivost za prizore i za često zanemarene a dojmljive prizorne detalje, ali i da svojim pomnim hodom evociraju ono raspoloženje koje omogućuje danu opservacijsku selektivnost. Kao i poneki tadašnjiigrani amaterski filmovi, i dokumentarci su bili zapravo podjednako dokumentima prizora kao i dokumentima filmski dosegnuta mentalnog stanja, osobitog svjetonazornog 'raspoloženja' autora.

Opredijeljeno, a gotovo i programatski, takvim su filmovima bili dokumentarci Mihovila Pansinija – jedne od izrazitih i važnih osobnosti modernističkog pokreta, dokumentarci iz druge polovine pedesetih (npr. 'Zagorski cug, 1955; 'Kamen diže sebi spomenike'; 'Siesta', 1958. i dr.), kao i filmovi Ivana Martinca, koji je nakon izrazito 'igrano' postavljenih filmova s egzistencijalistički 'otuđenim' likovima na prijelomu s pedesetih na šezdesete (trilogija 'Suncokreti', 1960; 'Rondo', 1962. i dr.) počeo svoj meditativni pogled sve više usmjeravati zatečenim splitskim vedutima i mediteranskim 'situacijama' ('Meštirović – egzaltacija materije', 1960; 'Monolog o Splitu', 1961., 'Mrtvi dan', 1965; 'Atelier Dioklecijan', 1967. i dr.). Taj je meditativno opredijeljen dokumentarizam ovih snažnih i plodnih autora postao utjecajnim modelom dokumentarističkog pristupa i za druge amatere sve do današnjeg dana, a osobito je obilježio 'splitski krug' amatera ne samo u šezdesetima (V. Nakić, R. Kursara, A. F. Stasenka...) nego i u sedamdesetim i osamdesetim godinama (P. Fradelić, B. Karabatić, D. Tasić ...). Iako drugačiji duhom, stanovita osobna selektivnost s elementima igra karakterizirala je i plodno amatersko stvaralaštvo Ljubiše Grlića. Takav je amaterski dokumentarizam svojom izdašnom meditativnošću, 'atmosferičnošću' dao svojevrsni legitimizacijski predložak i profesionalnom, tzv. autorskom dokumentarcu šezdesetih godina, u kojem je sugestija pažljivo montiranih slika 'bez riječi' postala važnom stilskom monetom (filmovi Ede Galića, Petra Krelje, Krste Papića, Zlatka Sudovića, Zorana Tadića, Bogdana Žižića ...).

Dokumentarni radikalizam eksperimentalističkog pokreta i potonje eksperimentalističke 'struje'
Samosvjestan osjećaj posebnog 'umjetničkog poslanja' ove meditativne struje, kao i utjecaj predložaka avantgardnih trendova okolnih umjetnosti (iz slike, glazbe, kazališta, književnosti...) brzo se u šezdesetim godinama zaoštrio u avangardistički program i traganje u sklopu kinoklubova.

Uglavnom s inicijativom i 'poetičkim' vodstvom Mihovila Pansinija, koji je organizirao diskusije o 'antifilmu' i 1963. pokrenuo bienalni festival eksperimentalnog filma (GEFF), ali i sklonostima i radom drugih autora (Vladimira Peteka, Tomislava Gotovca, Andelka Habazina, potom Mladen Stilinovića i drugih) u Zagrebu se iskristalizirao 'eksperimentalni film' kao programsko stvaralačko krilo.

S protunarativnim impulsom, eksperimentalni se film narativnoj dominanti kinematografije suprotstavljaо 'performativnom' postavom prizora (portretnim praćenjem stanja glavnoga lika, likova uhvaćenih u dokolici, mirovanju ili u repetativnim situacijama, bez akcijskih perspektiva), ali je svoju glavnu domenu imao baš u dokumentarističkom pristupu. Glavna se eksperimentalistička 'revizija' prevladavajućeg dokumentarističkog pristupa sastojala u tome što se – umjesto izbora tipičnih važnih' tema dominantnog dokumentarizma i složenih interpretativnih razrada – usredotočivalo na 'usputne', dogadajno 'neintrigante', 'rutinske' vidove stvarnosti, ali one koji tvore dominantnu 'pozadinu' naše odomaćenosti u životu, autorove svakodnevne emotivno obilježene sredine. Takvim su prizornim temama eksperimentalisti prilazili s naglašenim, često jednoobraznim, metodskim pristupom ('strukturalistički'), ponekad izrazito minimalistički (i u snimateljsko-montažnom postupku i u 'minimalističkom' predmetu promatranja; a tu je odliku tadašnjeg eksperimentalnog zagrebačko-splitskog eksperimentalnog filma pokojni srpski teoretičar Dušan Stojanović nazvao 'fiksacijom'). Takvi su izrazito bili filmovi Tomislava Gotovca ('Pravac', 'Kružnica', 'Plavi jahač', '29', 'T...'), neki filmovi Mihovila Pansinija ('Dvorište', 'Scusi signorina'), filmovi Ivana Martinca (u dosljednoj stopljenosti s njegovim meditativnim pristupom: 'Mrtvi dan'; 'I'm mad'), ali takvi su bili i dinamični filmovi Ante Verzottija, izrazito selektivna fokusa ('Twist twist', 'Fluorescencije'...);

Ova fokusirana, minimalistička dokumentarističnost imala je svoje nastavljače i obnavljače među umjetnički i modernistički orijentiranim neprofesionalacima i u sedamdesetim i osamdesetim godinama – npr. (npr. u više filmova Ivana Faktora, osobito njegov 'Autoportret'; potom u filmovima Branka Karabatića), a osobitom je bila crtom rane konceptualističke video-umjetnosti u sedamdesetim i osamdesetima. Ostala je i do danas, prisutna, recimo, u filmovima Ane Hušman, Željka Radivoja, Milana Bukovca...

Zapravo, velik dio suvremene eksperimentalističke scene – bilo one klupske i neovisne (osobne produkcije), bilo one koja danas djeluje u proto-profesionalnim uvjetima zahvaljujući državnoj subvenciji i drugim institucijskim potporama, izrazito je dokumentaristički obilježen, pružajući stalnu, naglašeno osobnu sliku svijeta, odnosno sliku raznovrsna osobnog doživljavanja svijeta.

Mnogostrukturnost neprofesijskog dokumentarizma

No, važnost koju ove personalizirane, meditativne i eksperimentalističke verzije dokumentarizma imaju za dokumentarističku, i općefilmsku, povijest hrvatskog filma nikako ne smije potisnuti važnost i onog krila neprofesijskog dokumentarizma u kojem se – pod osobitim uvjetima klupskog i osobnog rada – nastojalo razraditi dominante obrasce dokumentarizma.

Onako kako je personalizam obiteljskog filma (koji je stalnom dominantnom formom 'društveno neorganiziranog', obiteljskog amaterizma) omogućio da se meditativni, personalistički dokumentarizam 'prirodno' javi i u amaterskim društvima kad su se 'privatni' amateri počeli udruživati, a legitimna 'privatnost' filmskog pristupa postala dobrom tlom za 'umjetnički personalizam' koncem pedesetih i početka šezdesetih, a potom i put personalističkom radikalizmu eksperimentalnog dokumentarca, tako je on otvorio i 'pitomije', odnosno standardnije varijante personalističkog pristupa (neki od njih u tradiciji 'poetskog dokumentarca').

Na primjer, javilo se izrazito poetsko-impresionističko bilježenje kao legitimna dokumentaristička podvrsta (Tatjana Ivančić s nizom svojih filmova, npr. 'Burom'; ili primjerice D. Čučić s 'Filmom protiv autora'; ili T. Vereš i M. Bukovac s 'Tour-retour' itd.). Potom konceptualno izričitija, težična evokativnost asocijativnih montažnih nizova (npr. M. Hodak s 'Rukama'; Ž. Luković s '24 sata'), a taj se težično-evokativni pristup znao usmjeriti i u socijalno-kritičkom pravcu (npr. P. Trinaestić s 'Ho-ruk'; M. Mikuljan s više socijalno kritičkih filmova te dojmljivim 'Druga strana obale').

Stanovita pokretljivost i lokacijska prisutnost amatera s vlastitom tehnikom, te odsutnost administrativnog petljanja, učinila je da su u ponekim kriznim trenucima društva – recimo za vrijeme Domovinskog rata – upravo amateri bili (onako kako su to danas vlasnici mobitela) prvi priručni filmski svjedoci, svjedoci 'na terenu' križnih situacija i događaja. Njihovi su zapisi trajnim arhivskim dokumentima povijesti – no, ponekad su uspijevali više od onog što su uspijevali institucijski dokumentaristi: u bogato detaljnem (opservacijski 'slobodnjem'), snažno evokativnom ocrtavanju atmosfere, kao primjerice Ivan Faktor s 'Osijek petak 13.09.1991.'

Uz to, cijelo se vrijeme javljalo amatera koji su nastojali davati prilog proširenim dokumentarističkim vrstama. Ponavljano su se, primjerice, javljali filmovi u kojima su autori (i odrasli i djeca) nastojali dokumentirati narodne običaje, obrte što su ih uočavali u svojoj sredini, a kojima je prijetilo izumiranje (kako to svjedoči izdvojen program – 'Susjedska 'etnografija'). Učestale su i reportažne forme kojima su se tematizirali socijalni problemi ili intrigantni vidovi životnog trenutka (svojevrsna varijanta 'antropologije suvremenosti': npr. Zrinka Vrane, 'Prometna policija'; ili združeni rad srednjoškolki 'Krešo'). I jedno i drugo bilo je uglavnom rađeno po modelu odgovarajućih televizijskih emisija – folklornog programa i televizijskih reportaža. Česta niskostandardnost televizijskih predložaka u koje su se tipično ugledali amateri činili su da je i razina mnogih takvih filmova znala biti niskostandardna, te je prihvat tih filmova bio često podcjenjivački. Ali, valja reći da je – kao uostalom i u profesionalnom okružju – ova svojevrsna 'susjedska etnografija', a i reportažno svjedočenje o suvremenosti, znalo dati etnografski i povjesno vrijedne, a ponekad i vrlo zabavne i vještive priloge, koji su u rangu visokovrijednih dokumentarističkih i reportažnih ostvarenja (kako to svjedoče spomenute reportaže, odnosno impresionističko-'folkloristička' studija 'Zagorje libre' proizašla iz trakošćanske filmske radionice).

Suvremena situacija

Nametnuta izolacija amaterske kinematografije od profesionalne i stanovit duh 'izolacionizma' – pokušaja samih amatera da uvise 'slobodu' svojeg stvaralaštva nasuprot onome profesionalnom (ovisno o novcu, intervencijama naručitelja i ideološkim proskripcijama) i da proglose svoj amaterizam moralno i estetski superiornim profesionalnoj kinematografiji – potrajan je nekih desetak godina, od konstitutivnih pedesetih do dobrog dijela šezdesetih. No već u drugoj polovici šezdesetih godina taj je izolacionizam počeo slabjeti, biti 'propusnjih' granica, da bi ga u novije doba gotovo posve nestalo. U uvjetima u kojima nije postojao uhodan način 'ulaska u profesionalnu kinematografiju' (jer su sva mesta već bila 'zaposjednuta'), manji se broj amatera 'prebacivao' u profesionalce 'posebnim kanalima' (npr. Zlatko Sudović po organizacijskom 'društvenom' angažmanu, Milan Šamec kao filmski organizator, opet po angažiranom organizacijskom radu, a neki po inozemnom studiju filma na koji su se kvalificirali po svojim amaterskim filmovima: Rajko Grlić, Lordan Zafranović). No, do načelnog 'otvaranja' profesionalne sredine došlo je tek snažnijim tektonskim promjenama u globalnoj kulturnoj situaciji.

Prvo, prodor postavki tzv. autorskog filma u šezdesetim godinama potkrijepljen trajnim nezadovoljstvom s postojećim sustavom financiranja i proizvodnje domaćeg filma, te cehovske zatvorenosti te sredine, imao je svoj rezultat u promjeni sustava financiranja polovicom šezdesetih: državni proračunski novac nije više isao izravno producentima, nego autorskim projektima koje su birale 'stručne komisije' na temelju natječaja, a autori koji su dobili potporu potom su birali producente koji im odgovaraju. U tom novom sustavu mogao se natjecati bilo koji filmaš bez obzira na to odakle dolazio (samo ako je imao neku filmsku 'pretpovijest'), pa su se i poneki amateri natjecali za potporu, a poneki je uspjeli i dobiti (npr. Ivan Martinac, Vladimir Petek, Lordan Zafranović...). Time su dobili i mogućnost da rade svoje filmove pod izdašnjim profesionalnim uvjetima. Najčešće bi birali rad u nekoj manjoj producentskoj družini, a tada je bilo omogućeno razmjerno lako osnivanje (npr. u tzv. 'filmskoj radnoj zajednici'), s time da se jedna (FAS - Filmski autorski studio) izlučila iz same kinoklupske sredine. Uostalom, istodobno s ovim zbivanjima u Hrvatskoj, cijelo se krilo srpskog autorskog (profesionalnog) filma u šezdesetima artikuliralo od prijašnjih amatera (D. Makavejev, K. Rakonjac, M. Babac, A. Petković i dr.) i time ukazalo na mogućnost 'evolucije' amaterizma u profesionalizam na ukupnom jugoslavenskom području.

No, mogućnosti 'prebacivanja' amatera u profesionalce mnogo je snažnije pridonijelo širenje televizijske filmske produkcije. Televizijske postaje, utemeljivane od sredine pedesetih godina, doživljavale su snažan rast tijekom šezdesetih i sedamdesetih: raste broj televizora po domaćinstvima, raste broj gledatelja, distribucija televizijskih signala obuhvaća sve veće područje republike, povećava se dnevni raspon programa, pa se u skladu s tim povećavaju programsko-producijske potrebe televizija, a time i potrebe za koliko-toliko obrazovanim kadrom: snimateljima, montažerima, redateljima... Amaterska sredina s ljudima koji su prošli tečajevi i imali iskustva u radu s filmom i to u svim tim zanimanjima, postala je izvorištem i televizijskih profesionalaca. Amateri su se ili zapošljavali na ondašnjim televizijskim postajama (u Hrvatskoj na Televiziji Zagreb), ili su postali stalnim 'vanjskim suradnicima'.

Iako je cijeli proces bio pretežno 'jednosmjeran' – od amaterizma ka televizijskom i kinematografskom profesionalizmu, imao je i važne 'povratne' vidove. Mnogi izvorni amateri ubrzo su se u profesionalnoj sredini osjetili 'zauzdanim' u rutinske poslove (osobito na televiziji), ili su naišli na vrlo nesustavnu (krajnje neizvjesnu) potporu subvencijskih tijela kinematografije, koja nije jamčila redovit filmski rad. A k tome, mnogi su ostali osjećajem 'umjetničke' i društvene pripadnosti vezani uz svoje klupske sredine, pa su poneki nastavljali, paralelno sa svojom profesionalnom filmskom djelatnošću, djelovati i u kinoklubovima, ili kao samostalni autori, dakle i dalje raditi filmove 'amaterski', 'izvanprofesijski', po svojoj poeticici, 'slobodni' od stega svojeg zaposleničkog mjestra. Tako su mnogi radili 'dvotračno': npr. Vladimir Petek, Ivan Martinac, a poslije Marijan Hodak, Branko Bubenik, Boris Poljak, Damir Čučić, Milan Bukovac i dosta drugih. Poneki su od njih pritom u svoj amaterski rad donosili i svoju 'profesionalnu tehnologiju' i izrađivačke norme, pa su i njihovi 'neprofesijski' filmovi gubili onaj 'tehnološki biljež' amaterizma (loših tehničkih uvjeta snimanja i opreme filma) koji su kinoklupski filmovi zadugo imali.

No, granice između amaterizma i profesionalizma ne samo da su postale vrlo 'prohodne', nego su se postupno u devedesetima, a osobito u novom mileniju, počele sve više zamagljivati, da bi u novije vrijeme izgubile gotovo potpuno svoju pouzdanost – razlike između filmova koji nastaju 'amaterski' od onih koji nastaju 'profesionalno' postale su krajnje nesigurne, maglovite i jedva kad važne.

Tome je ponajviše pridonio tehnološki prijelom: postupan, ali temeljiti prelazak iz filmske tehnologije na video tehnologiju. Taj je trend prvo zahvatio upravo kinoklubove, čim je videotehnologija postala jeftinija i pristupačnija. Oni su svojim, kakvim-takvim, subvencijskim novcem mogli kupovati videotehnologiju i tako su već koncem osamdesetih, a osobito početkom devedesetih, gotovo svi klubovi prešli na videotehnologiju. Na revije amaterskog, neprofesijskog stvaralaštva prestala su pritjecati djela na filmskim vrpcama (na super 8mm vrpci ili na 16 mm vrpci) i posve su zadominirala videodjela. No, sličan se proces odvijao i na kinematografskom i televizijskom području. Televizijska produkcija se zadugo (osim one u studijima) temeljila na filmskoj tehnologiji. Ali pojavom prijenosne videotehnologije i njezinim usavršavanjem i televizijska produkcija prelazi postupno, do danas potpuno, na nju – film prestaje biti televizijskom tehnologijom. Slično se dogodilo i sa samom kinematografijom: tijekom devedesetih godina progresivno je smanjivana proizvodnja na filmskoj vrpci te se omjer djela koja su prikazivana filmski i onih na videu na nacionalnom festivalu kratkih i srednjometražnih filmova, Danima hrvatskog filma, drastično priklonio onima na videu (iako je uporaba filmske tehnologije i do danас zadržala svoj prestižni opstanak na kinematografskom području, osobito onom cjelovečernih filmova). Ova prekretnica, dodatno osnažena ubrzanim tehnološkim usavršavanjem koje je značilo približavanje jeftinijih ('neprofesionalnih') video-formata profesionalnima te veće mogućnosti dotjerane obrade filmova (osobito pojavom kompjutorske obrade i digitalnih formata), pridonijela je tome da su granice između 'siromaškog' snimanja filmova u neprofesijskim uvjetima i onog 'profesionalno bogatijeg' bile sve manje, a i sve manje prepoznatljive u finalnim proizvodima, u 'izgledu' samih djela.

Kako su sada i pojedinci mogli osigurati privatnu videotehnologiju i raditi filmove po prihvatljivoj tehnološkoj normi, javlja se sve više 'samostalnih autora', onih koji ne pripadaju ni nekom amaterskom klubu, niti rade u profesionalnim studijima ili s profesionalnim producentima. Mnogi pojedinci, odrasli u atmosferi i važnosti audiovizualnog - 'medijskog' - svemira (filmsko-televizijsko-videoumjetničkog), a obrazovani na nekom relevantnom području, posebno likovnih umjetnosti, počinju raditi autonomne filmove, velikim dijelom u modernističkoj tradiciji, ali mnogi i u tradiciji dominantnih filmskih stilova. Dokumentarizam i nadalje postaje ključnim rodom što protkiva takvo stvaralaštvo, pa su dokumentaristički prilozi i eksperimentalno-filmske tradicije (sada prosljedivane u video-tehnologiji) i novije jake videoumjetničke tradicije postali važnim dijelom suvremenog reprezentativnog dokumentarizma u Hrvatskoj, ravnopravno se natječeći na različitim filmskim festivalima, ponekad prikazivani i na televiziji.

Tako je danas stvorena situacija da izrada antologiskog programa novijih 'neovisnih' (neprofesijski nastalih) filmova zapravo jest izrada antologije suvremenih dokumentarističkih dostignuća uopće, očitujući cijeli spektrar dokumentarističkih stilova i opredjeljenja. Moguće je, recimo, naići na suptilno klasično dokumentarističko (protoetnografsko), atmosferom nabijeno, svjedočanstvo R. Karalića 'Stonoga', ili E. Lenića 'Čuki'. Tu je i 'film o umjetniku' - Ž. Radivoja 'Rubikon' - koji je, iako u tradiciji filmova o umjetnosti, dan s naglašenom 'eksperimentalističkom revizijom' - film je svojevrsnom iskaznom performansom, a cijeli dan u konceptualnom jednom kadru. Z. Zekanović nastavlja s impresionističko-ekspresionistički evokativnim stilom (Hart of an immigrant), a slično, iako naizgled 'nepristranje' izrazito je evokativan M. Papić (Zagreb, Hrvatska). Opet, Ana Hušman u svojim samostalno proizvedenim filmovima njeguje raznovrsni eksperimentalistički temeljen 'konstruktivni' dokumentarizam (s čestim korištenjem žive animacije: 'Daily progress'; 'Plac'), dokumentarizam s izrazito obojenom opažalačkom osobnošću, ponekad i izrazitom tematskom autoreferencijalanošću (npr. ispovijedna rekonstrukcija prošlosti u 'Kući').

Današnja skliskost granica između neprofesijskog rada i onog profesijskog vjerojatno će onemogućiti, ili barem otežati, izradu ovakvih specijaliziranih programa 'neprofesijskog filma' u budućnosti – kriterij profesijska-neprofesijska djelatnost vjerojatno će vrijediti samo za poneke segmente audiovizualne kulture (one reprezentativno komercijalne, bilo kinematografske, bilo televizijske), ali na većini ostalih strana bit će izrazito irelevantna – kako je to bila i u nijemome, pionirskom razdoblju, od kojeg smo počeli.

Amateur documentaries in the 1920s and 1930s

In the beginning, in the 1920s and in particular the 1930s, the main difference between professional and 'amateur film' in Croatia was not at all related to professionalism, or in other words the level of expertise involved in the production of films. Instead this difference was based on the professional, or employment, status of the film maker, as in whether making films was their main source of employment or whether it was a kind of hobby that they did in their free time when they were not working. In this period, the standard of amateur documentary films, as well as other film genres (for example, Oktavijan Miletic's feature film), was on a total par (and sometimes even superior) with the institutions of the time, and professional productions...

To be more precise, amateur film makers started to become active in Croatia at the beginning of the '20s. Relatively soon afterwards, in 1928, these amateurs organized themselves socially into the cine-section of the then influential Zagreb 'Foto Club'. This can also be taken as evidence of an adequate spread of individuals with amateur cameras. Seven years later (1936), the cine-section turned into the independent club of amateur film makers in Zagreb. Although these amateurs were based in the capital city, Zagreb, there were other amateurs in other parts of Croatia who participated at amateur film festivals and other cinematic competitions and were thus present in public life...

This branch of non-professional film makers proudly called themselves 'amateurs' because due to the fact that they came from the upper and middle classes and were upstanding and well-off members of society, their dedication to film was exclusively out of love. They were people who were enthralled by the new technologies, and had a fascination for the world of film and the film going world. They were also people who were sufficiently wealthy to be able to afford the recently introduced narrow film amateur equipment (9.5 mm camera, equipment, film) and who had enough free time to be able to systematically dedicate themselves to their favorite (and very serious) hobby. This involved methodologically educating themselves about technology and filming techniques, following the latest technological developments, making their own films, experimenting with different styles and genres, meeting up to discuss things, organizing festivals...

The Croatian branch of professional cinematography at that time could still be considered to be 'pioneering', since there were no institutionally stable production companies, or stylistic developments connected to this. Instead, it depended on individual achievements and opportunities. The level of expertise of amateurs, or in other words their technological and stylistic knowledge, was at an equal level to those people who professionally dedicated themselves to film and lived from it. In fact, the social status of a large number of amateurs was often higher (they were doctors, lawyers, business people, engineers, members of nobility...). Moreover, whenever it was required, as competent film makers amateurs were sometimes called upon to make films to order. Thus, they did work professionally, and sometimes became professional film makers (e.g. Oktavijan Miletic).

parallel, alternative and sub-cultural survival – non-professional documentary film making in croatia

Oktavijan Miletić, and the slightly older dentist Maksimiljan Paspa, were the most famous amateur film makers in the '20s and '30s [they are widely remembered in historical memory and their films are still preserved and available to be watched]. Like other amateurs who had their own cameras, neither of them could resist filming their own family, friends, and festive occasions. In doing so, they achieved what professional film could not even consider doing for a long time: family, private films, films full of personal references that took a totally personal approach. The use of film as a way of positioning one's personal relation towards the world, as evidence that doesn't hide but reveals the author and their intimate self, remained a significant stylistic trend that ran throughout the entire history of amateur film, later on as the dominant self conscious 'artistic' trend. However, the principal reason as to why amateurs engaged in film making was not to record their own family and natural events, but to engage in what film principally does: to record the world documentarily and thoughtfully, aiming to do so as a socially legitimate and potentially public act, and to present something that is worth showing the world. Their documentaries, such as Miletić's satirical observations about the Croatian countryside, fairs, folklore and important social events are important historical documents, and bear witness to the descriptive – exhibition standard of Croatian documentary film-making between the two world wars. This trend, which is also contained within the framework of dominant cinematography and the one that they subscribed to, has remained constantly present: a large portion of the amateurs in our history aspired to be a part of a filming model that was dominated by professionals, and tried, at least through their films, to be an indiscernible part of the dominant film productions. This has carried on all the way to the present day, sometimes successfully and sometimes not.

The cinematic club movement of the 1950s and 1960s - artistic documentaries

Although before the Second World War, private and self-organized amateur film-making was an activity that was on a par with professional film-making, things considerably changed in the socialist period after the Second World War. This was the period when the state organized cinematography of the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia came into effect.

The first change was actually of benefit for amateurs. Namely, in the new, socialist social organization, the expansion of amateurism became a political program. Due to the implementation of the 'expanding culture in the nation' program or the idea of 'national technique', they started to systematically establish cinematic clubs throughout Croatia. Thus, amateur cinema became accessible to anyone who was interested and not only to the more well-off citizens (who were rapidly disappearing at this time). The cinematic clubs ensured the technology, film tape, and laboratory production, and anyone who was interested in film could join them. They were also able to acquire a basic knowledge about film making through courses, knowledge that they could then go on to nurture through actively making films. Although the first newly founded clubs were organized by mainly older 'pre-war' amateurs who had their own techniques, young members soon started to join these clubs, as well as students, and even graduates and high school students (children's cinematic clubs were also established) used the clubs' technical services.

Ironically, however, the democratization of amateurism made it lose its systematic declassification. Amateurism in this form of specialized and programmatic type of organization into clubs became a kind of cinematographic (and social) 'ghetto'. Amateur cinematography was not a part of serious cinematography, amateurs were non professionals and their films were just a form of self-reflective dilettantism, acceptable only within the confines of the ghetto, and in not within the realm of serious or proper (professional) cinematography. This relation was partly conditional upon the early professionalism of the dominant cinematography, as well as a public (critical and also internal) struggle about the creation of a globally relevant technical and stylistic standard within the emerging film industry. Whilst professionals laid out the obligatory normative demands, these demands were not considered to be obligatory for amateurs. For them they were merely guidelines, to be followed as a matter of personal choice and based on the ambitions individual amateurs. The boundary between the obligatory [professional] and non-obligatory [amateur] conditions of making films became a division of social status, which sharply divided the amateurs from the professionals and gave them an automatic privileged social and professional status in relation to the amateurs.

However, this new 'ghettoized' position of amateurism, separated from 'professional' standards, gave young amateurs prospects that, in the predominantly professional cinema, were incomparably hindered and under stronger political control, because the marginal and ghettoized status of amateurism tolerated not only 'non-professionality', but also 'frivolity': it allowed the fascinated youth to indulge in individual 'unconventionalities' and individual 'arbitrariness' both in relation to predominant film forms and in relation to proclaimed [ideological and esthetic] values. Clubs and amateurs thus had an opportunity to develop a rather autonomous, individualized, subcultural creativity, a kind of 'alternative' to the predominant cinematography.

This opportunity was soon 'used up'. It was self-confidently articulated in the late 1950s, and particularly in the 1960s. It was the time of gradual introduction of a more liberal communist policy in former Yugoslavia. Using this trend, artists and intellectuals started working in the spirit and under the influence of modernist movement, then strong in the world (and particularly in the West), and its avant-garde. Romantic ideas of art as an artist's individual expression, present in Croatia since early Modernism from the turn of the century, were revitalized in the 1950s and became very loud in the 1960s.

The renaissance of modernism was somewhat easier in 'individual arts', those that enabled artists to work at home and in studios where they could meet – literature, painting, music, as well as for art critics. It was much more difficult in 'collective art' such as professional, institutionalized film making, because it was under strong ideological scrutiny and subject to self-censorship. It also felt the need for more competent, professional standardization of the 'trade'. This is how amateurism, owing to its ghettoized relaxed quality and social and political 'marginal' position and to predominantly individual work on film (films would be shot and processed by individual amateurs, only now and then with a little help from a group of friends), became the point of modernisms' early penetration into cinematography.

Modernist ambitions were particularly present among young filmmakers who were joining cinema clubs. They would join the clubs with already articulated views of cinematography as of a primarily artistic activity with self-expressive tasks. They tried to base filming of typical documentarist motives – not only ethnographic communities and nature, historical cores of cities, works of art, but also direct surroundings of everyday life with which man has a deep relation – on a pronouncedly personal, observational sensitivity of an author and make it an expression of one's observational and meditative perceptiveness. Such authors tended to frame and edit their films in such way as to sharpen the visual sensitivity for the scenes and for, often ignored, details of the scenes, as well as to provoke with their elaborate approach the mood that enables the given observational selectivity. Just like occasional amateur feature films of those days, documentaries equally represented the documents of the scenes they had captured and the documents of the mental conditions achieved by the films, and, particularly, of their authors' view of life.

Almost programmatically and by their orientation, such were the documentary films of Mihovil Pansini – one of remarkable and important personalities of modernist movement (his films from the late 1950s, such as Zagorski cug, 1955; Kamen diže sebi spomenike; Siesta, 1958 etc.), as well as the films of Ivan Martinac, who, after his markedly 'feature-like' documentaries with existentially 'alienated' characters from the late '50s and early '60s (the Suncokreti trilogy, 1960; Rondo, 1962 etc.), gradually started redirecting his meditative view to the panoramas of Split and Mediterranean 'situations' (Meštrović – egzaltacija materije, 1960; Monolog o Splitu, 1961; Mrtvi dan, 1965; Atelier Dioklecijan, 1967 etc). To the present day, the meditative documentarist approach of these strong and fruitful authors has become a model for many other amateur documentarists; it particularly influenced the 'Split circle' of amateur film makers not only in the 1960s (V. Nakić, R. Kursar, A. F. Stasenko...), but also in the 1970s and 1980s (P. Fradelić, B. Karabatić, D. Tasić ...). Although different in their spirit, the fruitful amateur films of Ljubiša Grlić were also characterized by certain personal selectivity with elements of fascination. To an extent, the opulent meditative approach and ambience of this amateur documentarism influenced the professional, so called auteur documentaries of the 1960s, in which the suggestion behind the carefully edited images 'without comment' became an important style of the trade (the films of Edo Galić, Petar Krelja, Krsto Papić, Zlatko Sudović, Zoran Tadić, Bogdan Žilić etc).

Documentarist radicalism of experimental movement and trends in it

In the 1960s, the self-confident feeling of a special 'artistic mission' of this meditative stream and the influence of the avant-garde patterns of the trends in other arts (painting, music, theatre, literature...) soon turned into an avant-garde program and search in cinema clubs.

Mostly owing to the initiative and 'political' leadership of Mihovil Pansini, who organized discussions on 'anti-film' and launched the biennale-type festival of experimental film (GEFF) in 1963, as well as under the influence of the work and tendencies of other authors (Vladimir Petek, Tomislav Gotovac, Andelko Habazin, followed by Mladen Stilinović and others), 'experimental film' took a more definite shape as a programmatic creative stream in Zagreb

With its counter-narrative impulse, experimental film opposed the predominant narrative of cinematography by offering the 'performing' nature of scenes (by giving portraits of the conditions of main characters, characters caught while at leisure and in repeated situations, with no action perspectives), but its main feature was its documentarist approach. The main experimental 'revision' of the predominant documentary approach was based on the fact that, instead of choosing typical important topics of the predominant documentarism and complex interpretative elaborations, it focused on 'incidental', 'unintriguing' and 'routine' aspects of reality, which, however, make up the predominant 'background' of ours and the author's everyday routine, including emotional routine. For these topics, experimentalists would use an emphasized, often uniform, methodical ('structuralist') approach, sometimes markedly minimalist (in shooting and editing and in choosing a 'minimalist' object of observation - a characteristic of the then experimental films of Zagreb and Split that late Serbian theoretician Dušan Stojanović called a 'fixation'). Such were the films of Tomislav Gotovac Tomislava Gotovca (Pravac, Kružnica, Plavi jahač, 29, T...), some films of Mihovil Pansini (Dvorište, Scusi signorina), films of Ivan Martinac (consequently blended with his meditative approach: Mrtvi dan; I'm mad), including, also, the dynamic films of Ante Verzotti, with their markedly selective focus (Twist twist, Fluorescencije, etc).

This focused, minimalist documentary approach had its followers and 'revivalists' among non-professionals oriented to art and modernism in the 1970's and '80s (e.g. in several films of Ivan Faktor, particularly his Autoportret; then, also, in the films of Branko Karabatić) and it was also a characteristic of the early conceptual video art in the '70s and '80s. It can be found even today in the films of Ana Hušman, Željko Radivoj, Milan Bukovac...

Actually, a large part of the modern experimental scene - were it the club and independent scene (personal production) or the today's scene which is proto-professional due to government subsidies and other institutional support - is pronouncedly documentarist, offering a permanent, markedly personal image of the world, that is, an image of heterogeneous personal experience of that world.

Multiplicity of non-professional documentarism

However, although these personalized, meditative and experimental versions of documentarism are important for the history of documentary film in general in Croatia, their importance should not obscure the importance of that non-professional part of documentarism which - under specific conditions of working in a club or on one's own - tried to work out the predominant patterns of documentarism.

Just as it enabled that the meditative, personalist documentarism 'naturally' appears in amateur societies when 'private' amateurs started joining together and the legitimate 'privacy' of film approach became a solid ground for 'artistic personalism' in the late 1950s and early 1960s, and as it enabled experimental documentaries' development into personalist radicalism, the personalism of family film [which is constantly the predominant form of a 'socially unorganized', family amateurism] has opened some 'tamer', more standard variants of the personalistic approach [some of them in the tradition of 'poetic documentaries'].

For example, it paved the way for the markedly poetical and impressionist films as a legitimate documentary sub-type [Tatjana Ivančić with a series of her films, e.g. Bura; or, for example, D. Čučić and his Film Against Author; or T. Vereš and M. Bukovac with Tour-retour etc]. Then followed a sub-type of a more expressive concept evoking associations created by editing [e.g. M. Hodak with Ruke; Ž. Luković with 24 sata]; this approach would occasionally focus on social criticism [e.g. P. Trinaestić with Ho-ruk; M. Mikuljan with a number of social-criticism films and with his impressive Druga strana obale].

Owing to certain mobility and presence of amateurs with their own equipment and lack of involvement of state administration, in some moments of crisis – like the Homeland War – it was the very amateurs [as cell phone owners are today] who were the first witnesses of crisis events and developments 'in the field'. Their footage has become a permanent document of history; sometimes, they would achieve even more than the institutional documentarists: one such example is Ivan Faktor's Osijek petak 13.09.1991., with its intensive depiction of atmosphere.

Besides, there have always been amateurs trying to make their contribution to expanded documentary types. Repeatedly, there would be films in which authors [adults and children] try tried to document the dying folk traditions and crafts in their community [e.g. Susjedска etnografija ('Neighborhood Ethnography') program]. Frequent were also the reports covering social problems or intriguing aspects of the present-day life ('anthropology of contemporariness' of a kind: e.g. Zrinka Vrane and her Prometna policija, or the joint work of high-school girls Krešo). Both were mostly modeled on related TV shows - folklore and TV reports. The frequent low level of the TV shows that amateurs would usually take as an example resulted in a low level of such amateur films; expectedly, the reactions of the audience were often disparaging. However, it should be said that – as is the case in professional film making – this 'neighborhood ethnography' of a sort, as well as the reports depicting reality, would now and then produce ethnographically and historically valuable [sometimes very valuable and made with skills] material that could compete with the high-level documentary works and reports [as can prove the above mentioned reports and the impressionist & folklorist study Zagorje libre can prove, arisen from the Trakošćan film workshop].

Present-day Situation

The isolation that professional cinematography imposed on the amateur one, as well as certain spirit of 'isolationism' – an attempt of the amateurs themselves to celebrate the 'freedom' of their work against the professional one [which depends on money, interventions of the parties that have commissioned a film and ideological prescriptions] and to proclaim their amateurism morally and esthetically superior to professional cinematography – lasted some ten years, from the constituting '50s to the mid-'60s. However, as early as in the second half of the '60s, this isolationism grew weaker and its borders became more 'penetrable'; today, it is practically non-existent. Under the conditions in which there was no established 'admission to professional cinematography [because all the places were 'taken'], a number of amateurs would 'switch' to the professionals through 'special channels' [e.g. Zlatko Sudović used the 'organizational' arrangements, Milan Šamec too, while some used as a basis their film studies to which they had been admitted owing to their amateur films: Rajko Grljić, Lordan Zafranović].

Still, the conditional 'opening' of the professional scene took place only after strong tectonic moves in the global cultural situation.

First, the penetration of the fundamentals of the so called auteur film in the '60, supported by permanent dissatisfaction with the existing system of financing and production of Croatian films and by the self-contained nature of that guild-like community, resulted in a change of the financing system in the late '60s: state budget funds did not go directly to producers any more, but to author projects selected by 'expert boards' after a bidding; the authors that were given a subsidy would then select the producers that they found suitable. Any film maker could apply, regardless of where they lived [as long as they had some sort of film 'prehistory'], so even some amateurs would apply for a subsidy – some would even get one [e.g. Ivan Martinac, Vladimir Petek, Lordan Zafranović etc]. This gave them a chance to make their films under more professional conditions. They would typically choose to work in a small production company [it was then relatively easy to establish anything – including so-called 'work collectives for film']. One of them – Film Author's Studio, FAS – developed directly from the cinema club community. In addition, at the same time as these developments in Croatia were taking place, one entire part of Serbian auteur [professional] film in the '60s arose from former amateurs [D. Makavejev, K. Rakonjac, M. Babac, A. Petković and others], thus showing a possibility of an 'evolution' of amateurism into professionalism across Yugoslavia.

However, growing of TV film production was the factor that had the strongest influence on this 'switching' of amateurs into professionals. TV stations, established from the mid-'50s on, experienced a huge expansion in the '60s and '70s: the number of TV sets in households grew up; the distribution of TV signals covered more and more parts of each former Yugoslav republic; the daily broadcasting schedule became longer and more varied. This resulted in increased program-production requirements of TV stations, creating the need for more educated staff: cinematographers, editors, directors... For the people who took training and had experience in working on film in all of these professions, the amateur community became a source of TV professionals. The amateurs would either get a job on the TV stations of that time [in Croatia, it was TV Zagreb] or they would become permanent 'part-time collaborators'.

Although it was predominantly a one-way process – from amateurism to TV and cinematographic professionalism – there were important cases with the 'opposite' direction. Many original amateurs soon felt 'restrained' with routine work in their new professional environment [particularly on television] or they found out that the support of the film institutions providing subsidies was very non-systematic and uncertain and could not guarantee regular work on films. Moreover, many of them were still artistically and socially attached to their former cinema clubs. Some of them therefore continued to be active in clubs or as freelance authors, in parallel with professional activity. They would thus continue pursuing their poetics and make 'amateur', 'non-professional' films, 'free' from their official jobs. Many of them thus worked 'on two tracks' [e.g. Vladimir Petek, Ivan Martinac, later Marijan Hodak, Branko Bubenik, Boris Poljak, Damir Čučić, Milan Bukovac and many others]. Some of them used their 'professional technology' and processing standards in their amateur works; as a result, their 'non-professional' films lost that 'technological stamp' of amateurism [poor technical conditions of shooting and poor equipment] – something that cinema clubs had preserved for a long while.

However, the borders between amateurism and professionalism not only became very 'penetrable', but also vague [in the 1990s and, particularly, in the new millennium]; recently, they have almost disappeared: the difference between 'amateur' and 'professional' films have become vague and hardly ever relevant.

The technological break was the factor that contributed to it the most: the gradual, but fundamental transition from film technology to video technology. It was cinema clubs that started following this trend the moment video technology became cheaper and more accessible. With the subsidies they were receiving, they could buy video technology and, as early as in the late '80s [and, particularly in the early '90s], almost all cinema clubs adopted video technology. Works on celluloid (8mm and 16mm) were not sent to amateur film reviews any more and video works prevailed. A similar process was underway in cinematographic and TV areas, too. For a long time, TV production (except the one in studios) was based on film technology. However, with the arrival of portable video technology and its improvement, TV production started its gradual switch to it – a process that has recently been completed. Film has stopped being a TV technology. A similar thing happened with cinematography itself: in the '90s, production of film tape was progressively being reduced and the proportion of the works shown on video tape at the Days of Croatian Film (the national short and medium-length film festival) has dramatically increased compared to the works on celluloid (although the use of film technology has retained its prestigious position in cinematography, particularly for long feature films).

This watershed, additionally supported with rapid technological improvement that meant bringing cheaper ('non-professional') video formats closer to the professional-quality level and larger possibilities of fine processing of films (particularly with the arrival of computer processing and digital formats) contributed to the reduction of differences between the 'filmmaking for the poor' in non-professional conditions and 'professional filmmaking for the rich'; in the end, these differences almost disappeared from final products.

Since individuals could now also acquire their own private video technology and make films at acceptable technological standards, more and more 'autonomous authors' have emerged – the authors that neither belong to an amateur club nor they work in professional studios or with professional producers. Many individuals who have grown in the atmosphere of audio-visual – 'media' – space (film, TV, art video) and were educated in some relevant field, visual arts in particular, have started making autonomous films, mostly following the modernist tradition, but also in the tradition of predominant film styles. Documentarism is still the crucial genre in this work, so documentary materials from both experimental-film tradition (now using video technology) and the newer strong video-art tradition have become an important part of modern, representative documentarism in Croatia, competing on equal terms on various film festivals, and sometimes even being shown on TV.

*This is why today we have a situation that making an anthology of newer, 'independent' (non-professional) films actually means making an anthology of modern documentary achievements in general, reflecting the whole spectrum of documentary styles and orientations. For example, it is possible to come across the works of R. Karalić (Stonoga) or E. Lenić (Cuki) – subtle, classical, documentary (proto-ethnographic) testimonies loaded with atmosphere. There is also 'a film about an artist' – Ž. Radivoj's Rubikon, which, although belonging to traditional films about art, it is an 'experimentalist revision', a performance of a sort, conceptually made in a single frame. Z. Zekanović retains his impressionist-expressionist evocative style (Hart of an Immigrant); similarly evocative, albeit seemingly more 'biased', is M. Papić (Zagreb, Hrvatska). Ana Hušman, on the other hand, fosters in her autonomously made films a diverse, experiment-based 'constructive' documentarism (often using live animation: Daily progress; Plac) – a documentarism marked with an observational personal approach, sometimes even with prominent topical self-referentiality (e.g. her confession-style reconstruction of the past in Kuća).*

Today's vague boundary between non-professional and professional work will probably disable, or at least make more difficult, future attempts to make specialized programs of 'non-professional film' like this: the 'professional – non-professional activity' criterion will probably remain applicable only to some segments of audio-visual culture (the representative and commercial ones, be they TV- or cinematography-related). In most other cases, however, it will be markedly irrelevant – just like it was in the silent, pioneering era with which we have started this study.

Bogdan Žižić

U nas redatelji tradicionalno počinju karijeru ogledavanjem u kratkome filmu, ponajviše dokumentarcu. Iako taj rad drže ozbiljnim, jer ih on može predstaviti kao ozbiljne autore, većinom su im dugoročnije ambicije usmjerene cijelovečernjem igranom filmu, onome koji igra u kinima i zaokuplja najveći dio javne pozornosti. Kad uspiju dobiti igrani film, kad se uključe u krug 'filmskih redatelja' (a tipično se pod 'filmskim redateljem' misli na redatelja cijelovečernjeg igranog filma, a debijem, prvim nastupom, smatra se tek režija cijelovečernjeg igranog prvijenca) uglavnom napuštaju svoj kratkometražni rad, vraćajući mu se rijetko, najčešće tek kad im je u zaštalu igranofilmska karijera.

Nije tako s Bogdanom Žižićem. On je jedan od rijetkih autora u nas koji se i nakon uspješnog i razmjerno redovita rada na cijelovečernjim igranim filmovima (za naše prilike 'redovita': svake tri-četiri godine) nije ostavio ozbiljna i sustavna rada u kratkometražnom filmu, uporno nastavljajući i svoja dokumentaristička ispitivanja u sklopu kinematografije, a potom i u sklopu televizijske proizvodnje, snimivši blizu stotinu dokumentarnih filmova.

Žižić je počeo filmsko stvaralački raditi u svojim zrelim godinama (sa svojom tridesetom), a i s izrazito zrelim opredjeljenjem i stavom, i onim tematskim i stilskim. Po univerzitetском obrazovanju pravnik (1957.), svoj filmski angažman počeo je kao dramaturg – osoba koja procjenjuje scenarije, radi na njihovu dotjerivanju i suraduje s redateljem - u tada najjačem filmskom poduzeću za kratki film Zagreb filmu (1960.). Prvi mu je redateljski angažman bio upravo s dokumentarcem (1964. – 'Poplava'). Njegov je tematski interes odmah prevladavajuće bio usmjeren važnim temama, a osobito onim važnim temama koje su bile društveno zapostavljane. Stalna je linija u njegovu opusu – i dokumentarističkom, i kratko-igranom i cijelovečernjem igranom filmu – izrazita socijalno-kritička osjetljivost: ukazivanje na 'slabe točke' društvenog sustava. No, s druge strane, njegov je stilski, odnosno autorsko-doživljajni interes uvijek bio obilježen meditativnošću, nastojanjem da film strukturira kao svojevrsnu sugestivnu meditaciju nad zadanom temom.

Ovako retrospektivno gledajući, karijera Bogdana Žižića čini se sustavnim istraživanjem mogućnosti postojećih opredjeljenja u filmu. Krenuvši s dokumentarcem, u nizu je filmova stao ispitivati različite moduse dokumentarističkog svjedočanstava, ipak s najvećom ambicijom ispitujući u onome dobu posve nestandardnu formu auditivno i vizualno sugestivnog – nekomentiranog dokumentarca ('dokumentarca bez riječi' – kako je tu liniju svojeg dokumentarizma nazvao sam Žižić). Taj je ispitivački niz predstavljen u programu ovoga Zagrebdoga i o njemu će odmah biti više riječi.

No, ne ostavljajući se posve dokumentarizma, u sedamdesetima se Žižić počeo sustavno zaokupljati osobitim potencijalima kratkog igranog filma (opet podosta netipično za naše tadašnje redatelje koji su svoje igrane ambicije tipično težili ostvariti odmah u cijelovečernjem filmu). Snimio je opet izrazito istraživački niz: gotovo sustavno ispitivanje stilskih i tematskih narativnih varijanti djelotvornih u kratkoj formi, a osobito uspješno filmove fantastičke inspiracije ('Madeleine', mon amour, 1971., 'Putovanje', 1972.). S radom na kratkometražnom igranom filmu nastavio je i u osamdesetima).

bogdan žižić i 'dokumentarac bez riječi'

Opet, ne napuštajući posve rad na dokumentarcu i kratkom igranom filmu, polovinom sedamdesetih pa u osamdesete posvetio se radu na cijelovečernjim igranim filmovima obilježenim izrazito društveno-kritičkim opredjeljenjem ('Kuća', 1974; 'Ne naginji se van', 1977.; 'Daj što daš', 1980.; 'Rani snijeg u Münchenu', 1984.). I nadalje zainteresiran za različita tematska područja, u drugoj polovici osamdesetih, a osobito u devedesetima pa nadalje, njegovim radom sve više prevladava sustavan interes za dokumentarizam posvećen umjetnicima i umjetničkim djelima (za što je otprva pokazivao artikuliran interes). Taj njegov rad Žižića čini jednim od najznačajnijih autora dokumentaraca o likovnim umjetnostima u nas ('Ekspresionizam u hrvatskom slikarstvu', 1985.; 'Emanuel Vidović', 1989.; 'Celestin Medović', 1991; 'Vlaho Bukovac', 1994).

Žižićev prilog 'autorskem' dokumentarcu

U vrijeme kad se Žižić redateljski uključio u filmski rad, u ondašnjem je jugoslavenskom filmu snažila struja tzv. autorskog filma. Ideja 'autorskog filma' – personalizirana pristupa izradi filma s redateljem kao glavnim autrom koji daje filmu osobni tematski i stilski biljež – potkraj pedesetih i tijekom šezdesetih imala je svoje snažne zastupnike u ondašnjoj mladoj filmskoj kritici, ali i filmske 'ranoranoice' u kinoklupskom amaterizmu, u crtanom filmu ('zagrebačkoj školi crtanog filma', Zagreb filma, gdje je Žižić početkom šezdesetih bio dramaturg) te u dokumentarističkim filmovima, opet naglašeno u onima Zagreb-filma. Protagonisti ideje autorskog filma bili su izrazito kritički raspoloženi i prema uspostavljenim formalnim tradicijama i prema političkoj-doktrinarnosti koja je prožimala ondašnji film socijalističke Jugoslavije. Žižić, ulazeći u film zreo i s jasnom percepcijom što je u danim okolnostima najperspektivnija stvaralačka poetika, odmah je težio vlastitoj artikulaciji upravo 'autorskog pristupa'.

Najuočljiviji signal 'autorskog' pristupa bio je u otklanjanju od tadašnje dominantne i gotovo obvezujuće crte dokumentaraca: prisutnosti glasovnog komentara onoga što se prikazuje. Ti komentari – koje su često čitali spikeri s iritantnom intonacijom – varirali su od davanja dodatnih informacija uz sliku, preko poetski 'nadahnutih' interpretacija, do čestih ideološko doktrinarnih i propagandno intoniranih 'uputa' kako treba shvatiti ono što se gleda. Prvi 'opozicijski' potez dokumentarista s autorskom idejom vodiljom bio je u otklanjanju bilo kakva komentatorskog glasa, uklanjanju te nametljive obaveze ondašnje dokumentarističke glavne struje. Žižić je, primjerice, u oglednom filmu te orientacije – 'Pohvala ruci' (1967) – posve uklonio ne samo bilo koji spikerski komentar, nego i bilo koju riječ ili komentar samog majstora kojeg snima – cijeli se proces izrade violine zagrebačkog violinskog majstora odvija šutke samo s pojačano percipiranim zvukovima rada. Uklanjanje spikera, kao i izbjegavanje da se da bilo koji trag prisutnosti ekipe (a to je bila, zadržana, dominantna crta klasičnog dokumentarizma) podrazumijevalo je izbjegavanje nametljiva posredništva između gledatelja i snimanog: gledatelja se stavljalo u položaj izravna očevica. No, ta eliminacija posredništva nije nikako značila eliminaciju sugestivnosti i demonstraciju opažajne osjetljivosti autora, osjetljivosti koju autor želi podijeliti s gledateljem. Pomna fotografija, pažnja detalju, ali i atmosferi ambijenta (podjednako širim i kontekstualnim kadrovima, kao i perspektivnošću prizornih zvukova) uz meditativnu 'tišinu' samo individualnih zvukova rada ne samo da je pojačavala važnost opažanog, uzvisivala ga, nego je i podrazumijevana sugerirala viša, univerzalnija duhovna značenja cijelog tog prikazanog svijeta. Da ta sugestija univerzalnijih značenja ne bi promakla gledatelju, Žižić poseže za povremenim metonimijsko-metaforičnim kadrovima (recimo: uvodnim položenim rukama koje miruju, lepršanje golubova kroz otvoren prozor radionice, majstorovo pokrivanje lica rukama nakon obavljenog posla...). Tu je metodu gradnje sugestivnosti i poopćujućeg odnosa prema snimanome Žižić ispitivački razradivao u naредnim filmovima svoje serije. Konstantna je crta njegova pristupa težnja pomnoj vizualnosti, pomnom vizualnom ispitivanju prizora, ali će tome dodati traganje i za posebno simbolički sugestivnim snimkama krajolika, onima koji u prikladnome montažnom sklopu dobivaju figurativnu vrijednost, te će posebno ispitivati sugestivnu snagu zvukovne konstrukcije. Primjerice u 'Jasenovcu' (1967) Žižić koristi – za razliku od 'Pohvale ruci' – izjave sudionika odavanja počasti žrtvama Jasenovačkog logora, ali ne pokazuje izvorne govornike, nego te izjave tretira kao izvanprizorni, popratni govor. Taj se govor daje u odlomcima što se 'pretapaju' jedan u drugi (metoda iz Resnaisova filma 'Prošle godine u Marienbadu'). Time se i pojačava osjećaj fragmentarnosti sjećanja, ali se i kumulativno stvara vrlo plastična i dojmljiva slika o oblicima stradanja u logoru. Te pak fragmente smjenjuje s pasažima popratne glazbe i metaforičkih kadrova ambijenata, a sugestivnu prirodu svojeg pristupa ojačava metaforičko-metonijskim uvodom i izvodom iz filma (kumulativnim opisnim raskadriranjem vožnje vlaka, s time da vožnja 'završava' na obraštenoj mrtvoj pruzi – ili onaj izrazito simbolički kraj s bijelim konjem koji se utrukuje s vlakom).

U 'Jutru čistog tijela' retorički postupak analogije postat će interpretativnim 'ključem': Kršinićeve kamene skulpture mekih površina film sustavno uspoređuje s površinama morskog kamenja koje je 'izgladilo' more, a proces nastajanja oblina kipova iz grubog kamenog materijala uspoređivat će s raznim oblicima morskih stijena, od onih oštro nagriženih do glatko oplahnutih. I tu će zvuk biti važno sredstvo uzvisivanja: smjena popratne glazbe i probranih prizornih šumova (oplahnjivanje mora i krči galebova) pokrepljuje zadivljen odnos prema i prirodi i umjetničkom djelu. Analogiju kao načelo konstrukcije cijelog filma Žižić će koristiti i u filmu o dokumentarističkim crtežima Dragutina Trumbetaša 'Gastarbajter' (1977). Tamo se pedantno i naturalističko Trumbetaševu crtačko dokumentiranje prizora gastarbajterskog života uspoređuje sa stvarnim prizorima njemačkih gradova koji su Trumbetašu služili kao motivi, a kolažiranje radijskih zvukova, zatečene glazbe te prizornih šumova i tu sugerira osobito mukotrpno stanje duha koje Trumbetaš teži prenijeti crtežima.

Sugestivnu snagu koju ima ta kombinacija opisno razrađenog, pomno probrana vizualnog pristupa i kombinacije pomno izabrane glazbe, prizornih šumova, podjednako onih koji prate vidljivo zbivanje kao i onih koji dopiru iz prizorna konteksta Žižić će iskoristiti i za tešku i vrlo čitljivu optužbu prikrivanih temelja naše civilizacije u film 'Jedan život' (1985) – o životu purana od izlijeganja do klanja. A činit će to i u 'Sajmištu' (1982.), ali sada mnogo blaže, s više felinijevske sućuti za prizor.

Žižičevi filmovi nedvojbeno spadaju u paradigmatsku jezgru autorskog dokumentarca modernističkog razdoblja hrvatskog (i ondašnjeg jugoslavenskog) filma, podjednako su svjedocima stvarnosti kao i posebne vizije filma: ne kao onog koji tek bilježi, ni kao onog koji proklamira, nego kao onog koji ponire u samo tkivo stvarnosti – ali ponire zahvaljujući osobitoj filozofskoj, svjetonazornoj osjetljivosti svojega autora.

Our directors traditionally start their careers with short films, primarily documentaries. Although they do consider this a serious work, because it can present them as serious authors, their long-term ambitions are mostly oriented to long feature films, which are shown in theaters and attract most of public attention. Once they get a chance to make a feature film and become members of 'film directors' [the term 'film director' usually refers to directors of long feature films and their first such film is considered as their real debut, regardless of the short films made before it], they mostly leave short films, returning to them rarely, usually when their feature-film career comes to a stop.

Not so with Bogdan Žižić. He is one of few Croatian authors who, even after a successful and relatively regular career in long feature films ('regular' meaning a film every three or four years in Croatian conditions), has not given up serious and systematic work on short films, persistently pursuing his documentary exploration both in cinematographic and TV production, which resulted in almost one hundred documentaries.

Žižić started his creative film career as a matured artist (when he was thirty), which also included mature orientation, attitude, choice of topics and style. Although he studied law (and earned his grade in 1957), he started his film career as a playwright-in-residence – a person who studies and polishes scripts and works together with directors – in then very strong short film company Zagreb Film (1960). The first film he directed was the documentary 'Flood' (1964). From the very beginning he was interested in important topics, primarily socially neglected ones. The permanent characteristic of his work – documentary, short and long feature films – was a marked social and critical sensitivity: pointing at the 'weak points' of the society. On the other hand, his style and interest have always been characterized by a meditative approach, structuring his films as a suggestive meditation over the given topic.

Looking back, Bogdan Žižić's career seems like a systematic exploration of all possible orientations in film. Having started with documentaries, he would explore various modes of documentary testimonies in a number of his films; still, he invested his primary ambition in exploring the then non-standard form of documentaries – documentaries with suggestive audio and visual aspects and 'without comment' – as Žižić himself calls them. This series of exploratory films is presented in the program of this year's ZagrebDox and we will say something more about it below.

However, not leaving documentaries aside, Žižić started paying systematic attention to the exceptional potential of short film (again, a rather non-typical pursuit for Croatian directors of those days, who usually tended to realize their 'feature-related' ambitions in long feature films). He made another series of markedly exploratory films: almost systematic studies of narrative variants of styles and topics efficient in the short form, and, with particular success, films of fantasticality ('Madeleine, mon amour', 1971, 'A Journey', 1972). He continued working on short features in the 1980s.

bogdan žižić and 'documentaries without words'

In the mid '70s and early '80s, again not giving up working on documentaries and short features, he dedicated himself to long feature films marked by their social criticism (The House, 1974; 'Don't Lean Out the Window', 1977; 'Whatever You Can Spare', 1980; 'Early Snow In Munich', 1984). Due to his persisting interest in various topics, his work in the late '80s and early '90s is more and more dominated by a systematic interest in documentaries on artists and art (a topic he was clearly interested in from the very beginning). These works make Žižić one of the most important Croatian documentarists in the field of visual art ('Expressionism in Croatian Painting', 1985; 'Emanuel Vidović', 1989; 'Celestin Medović', 1991; 'Vlaho Bukovac', 1994).

Žižić's Contribution to 'Auteur' Documentaries

When Žižić was starting his career as a film director, there was a strong stream so called auteur film in the then Yugoslav cinematography. In the late '50s and early '60s, the idea of 'auteur film' – a personalized approach to filmmaking with director as the principal author who leaves his/her personal stamp to the style and topic of a film – had its eager advocates in young film critics, as well as in the 'early birds' of cinema-club amateurism, in cartoon film (the 'Zagreb Film School' and Zagreb Film where Žižić started his film career as a playwright-in-residence) and in documentary films, primarily the ones markedly fostered by Zagreb Film. The protagonists of the idea of auteur film were very critical both of the established formal traditions and of the political doctrine imbuing the films of socialist Yugoslavia. Having entered the world of film as a mature person with a clear idea of what was the most perspective creative poetics, Žižić immediately tended to achieve his personal articulation of the 'auteur' approach.

The most obvious signal of the 'auteur' approach was the elimination of the then predominant, almost compulsory, characteristic of documentary film: vocal commentary of what is being shown. These commentaries – often read by speakers with irritating intonation – varied from providing additional information with the pictures, through poetical and 'inspired' interpretations, to frequent ideological and propaganda-influenced 'instructions' on how viewers should understand the film they are watching. The first 'oppositional' move of the documentarists who had embraced the auteur approach was to eliminate any narration – that irritating 'must' of the then documentary mainstream. For example, in the model film of that orientation, 'A Praise to the Hands' (1967), Žižić drops every comment, not only the speaker's, but also of the craftsman he is filming – the entire process of the making of a violin is filmed in silence, only the noise of his work is underlined. The elimination of a speaker and any presence of the film crew (the latter being the predominant feature of classical documentarism), meant elimination of an irritating mediation between the viewer and the film – it turned the viewer into a direct witness. However, this elimination of mediation did not mean elimination of suggestiveness and of the author's observational sensitivity – a sensitivity the author wants to share with the viewer. The careful photography, focus on the details and the atmosphere (achieved also with wider and contextual frames), emphasized by meditative 'silence' interrupted by occasional sounds of work, not only strengthened the importance of what is being observed, it also suggested higher, universal spiritual meaning of the world shown in the film. So that the viewer would not miss this suggestion of more universal meanings, Žižić reaches for occasional metonymical and metaphorical frames (e.g. intro with the master craftsman's still hands, fluttering of pigeons through the workshop's open window, the craftsman covering his face with his hands after the job is done etc). In his subsequent films of his series, Žižić went on elaborating this method of building suggestivity and using a generalized approach to the object of his camera. To his permanent orientation to detailed visual approach and visual exploration of a scene, Žižić added his search for symbolically suggestive landscape shots which, when adequately edited, acquire a figurative value; he will also add to it the suggestive force of sound construction. For example, unlike in 'A Praise to the Hands', in his 'Jasenovac' (1967) Žižić uses the comments of the participants of the commemoration for the victims of the Jasenovac concentration camp, but he does not show them; instead, he treats their comments as an off narrative. Their comments are given in inserts, 'blending' with each other (the method used in Alain Resnais' film 'Last Year at Marienbad'). This increases the fragmentary feeling of the memories and cumulatively creates a very plastic and impressive picture of suffering in the camp. These fragments alternate music and metaphorical frames of ambiance. The director increases the suggestive nature of his approach to the film with the metaphorical and metonymical intro and outro (cumulative descriptive frames of a moving train, with the ride ending up on overgrown abandoned tracks; or that symbolical end with a white horse racing the train).

In 'The Morning of a Clean Body', the rhetorical procedure of an analogy will become a 'key' for interpretation: Frano Kršinić's stone sculptures with soft surfaces are systematically compared with the surface of the stones 'polished' by sea and the process of a statue's curves emerging from rough stone material is compared with various forms of rocks in the sea, the jagged and the smooth ones. Once again, the sound is an important means of exaltation: the change of music and selected noise (sea waves and seagulls) underline the admiration for nature and a work of art. The same principle of analogy Žižić will use in his film on the documentary sketches of Dragutin Trumbetaš, 'Foreign Worker' (1977). In the film, the meticulous and naturalistic Trumbetaš's drawing of the scenes of the life of foreign workers is compared with the real scenes of German cities used by Trumbetaš as a motive. The blending of radio sounds, incidental music and noise suggests the painstaking state of mind that Trumbetaš is trying to capture in his drawings.

The suggestive strength of this combination of a descriptively worked out, carefully selected visual approach and the combination of music, noises coming from the visible action and those coming from the surrounding context will be used by Žižić again in 'One Life' (1985), a bitter and demanding accusation of the concealed foundations of our civilization - a film about the life of a turkey from hatching to slaughter. He will do it in The Market (1982), too, but in a much gentler way, with more Feliniesque compassion for the scene.

Beyond doubt, Žižić's films belong to the paradigm core of the author documentaries of Croatian (and former Yugoslav) modernist period. They are equally witnesses of reality and of a special vision of film: not just as a means of recording or proclaiming things, but as a means that penetrates into the very fabric of reality, owing to the special philosophy, world view and sensitivity of their author.

ZagrebDox 2009

STAV 'A': ZagrebDox – međunarodni festival dokumentarnog filma, filma koji se prikazuje i filma koji se gleda.
STAV 'B': ZagrebDox – međunarodni festival dokumentarnog filma; filma koji se misli, uči i piše, filma kojem se zbraja i od kojeg se oduzima... čije je prikazivanje tek kraj dijela puta onih koji ga korak po korak stvaraju.
Put od stava A do stava B trajao je nekoliko godina...

U nizu priprema za upis na Akademiju dramskih umjetnosti u Zagrebu odgledala sam gomilu Factumovih dokumentarnih filmova. Za pitanja o nezavisnoj filmskoj produkciji u Hrvatskoj, na koja nisam nalazila odgovore, preporučeno mi je pokucati na vrata ljudi koji su te filmove snimali. Dogovorila sam dolazak u Factum. Dočekale su me producentice voljne pokloniti mi malo svoga vremena i razgovor uz čaj... Važno je također napomenuti da je pri tom posjetu tamo bio i jedan važan sjedokoski gospodin s bradom od kojeg sam zaradila 'Gospodice, tko ste Vi?' pogled zbog kojeg sam pričala malo tiše i malo brže. S djevojkama sam pričala baš o temama o kojima se raspravljalo na komisiji na prijamnom... Bio je to početak moga puta prema filmskom setu.

Kasnije su ti isti ljudi pokrenuli ZagrebDox pa hvalevrijedno festivalsko popratno događanje za filmske profesionalce, ZagrebDox Pro, te pozvali studente filma da vide o čemu se radi. S obzirom na ranije iskustvo pozitivnih ishoda interakcije s Factumovim ljudima, odlučila sam na radionicama provesti što više vremena. Problem moga umrežavanja bio je u tome što sam za vrijeme predstavljanja svih osoba s radionice morala istrčati do Akademije na ispit, a po povratku je bilo kasno za moje predstavljanje. Do kraja radionice sam ostala anonimna pojava koja sluša, zapisuje i sakuplja – 'Gospodice, tko ste Vi?' poglede.

Kako bih u budućnosti izbjegla nedoumice o svojoj pojavi, sljedeće sam godine s prijateljem s kojim sam radila na ideji za film prijavila status službenih promatrača ZagrebDox Pro događanja. Godinu dana kasnije naša se filmska ideja pretvorila u projekt s kojim smo sudjelovali u radionici i na Pitching forumu.

Prošla je još jedna godina.

Danas sam organizatorica ZagrebDox Pro dijela festivala, snimam svoj prvi dokumentarac, a kad navratim do Factuma, gospodin s početka mog puta pozdravlja me riječima: 'Tiha, što ima, kako si?!'.

*OPINION 'A': ZagrebDox - An international documentary film festival where films are screened and watched.
OPINION 'B': ZagrebDOx - An international documentary film festival where films are in one's thoughts, where films are learned and written, added and subtracted... screened and watched, too, but it is only the final part of the process for those who make them step by step.*

The trip from Opinion A to Opinion B took several years...

While preparing for admission to the Zagreb Academy of Dramatic Arts, I saw a whole bunch of Factum documentaries. After failing to find answers to my questions on independent film production in Croatia, I was told to knock on the door of the people who had made those films. I made an appointment in Factum. There I met a couple of girls, producers, willing to dedicate some of their time to me and have a chat over tea... It is important to note that, during my first visit, a solemn-looking gray-haired gentleman with a beard was there and gave me a 'Who are you, Miss?' look, which made me talk a bit quieter and a bit faster. The things I discussed with the girls then were the very things that were discussed at the admissions test at the Academy later. This was the beginning of my trip to the film set.

The very same people later launched ZagrebDox and, as a part of it, the commendable event for film professionals, ZagrebDox Pro, inviting film students to come and see what is it all about. Given my positive impressions from earlier contacts with the Factum people, I decided to spend as much time as I can in the workshop sessions. My problem with here was that I would always have to skip the introductory part of a session and run to the Academy to take an exam. When I would come back, it would be too late to introduce myself. So, all the way until the end of the workshop, I remained an anonymous girl that listens, makes notes and collects 'Who are you, Miss?' looks.

Next year, in order to put an end to my anonymity, me and a friend of mine (we were working together on an idea for a film) applied to attend ZagrebDox Pro events. A year later, our idea for a film advanced into a film project with which we took part in the workshop and Pitching Forum.

Another year passed.

Today, I am the organizer of ZagrebDox Pro and I am making my first documentary film. When I drop by to Factum now and then, the gentleman from the beginning of the story greets me with 'Hey, Tiha, what's up? How are you?'

zagrebdox pro - film as a trip

ZagrebDox Pro čini dvodnevna radionica pod vodstvom Tue Steen Mullera i Cecilie Lidin; istaknutim mentorima iz Europske dokumentarističke mreže (EDN) koji su kroz dugogodišnju suradnju sa ZagrebDoxom postali vrsni poznavaoци regionalnog filmskog podneblja i estetike te iz godine u godinu aktivno sudjeluju u nastojanjima za poboljšanje njezinog razvoja i pružanje potpore mladim filmskim autorima na europskoj razini. Radionica koju vode usmjerena je kvalitetnoj pripremi njezinih sudionika za Pitching Forum na kojem unutar standardiziranih okvira redatelji i producenti svoje projekte pitchaju, odnosno prezentiraju, pred komisijom urednika koji predstavljaju potencijalne investitore.

Projekti koji sudjeluju u Pitching Forumu odabiru se putem natječaja koji je otvoren za autore iz Albanije, Bosne i Hercegovine, Bugarske, Crne Gore, Hrvatske, Kosova, Makedonije, Rumunjske, Slovenije i Srbije.

Iz godine u godinu bilježi se porast interesa za ZagrebDox Pro, ove godine na natječaj je ponovno zaprimljen rekordan broj prijava odnosno, ukupno pedeset projekata, od kojih je odabrano njih četrnaest.

Autori će odabrane projekte pitchati pred sedam urednika.

ZagrebDox Pro is made up of a two-day workshop held by Tue Steen Müller and Cecilia Lidin, prominent mentors of European Documentary Network (EDN) whose long-time cooperation with ZagrebDox has turned them into experts for the films and esthetics of this region, to the benefit of which they have been working year after year. In the process, they have been supporting the young authors from the region on European level.

The workshop they facilitate has been designed to prepare its participants for the Pitching Forum in which, within a standardized frame, directors and producers present [pitch] their products before the board of editors representing potential investors.

The projects which are to participate in Pitching Forum are selected through a public bidding for the authors from Albania, Bosnia-Herzegovina, Bulgaria, Montenegro, Croatia, Kosovo, Macedonia, Romania, Slovenia and Serbia.

Every year there is a growing interest in ZagrebDox Pro. This year, we have [again] received more bids than ever – as many as fifty projects. Fourteen of these have been selected for participation in the Pitching Forum.

Projects will be pitched in front of seven different editors.

PROGRAM DOKUMENTARNIH RADIO DRAMA

DOCUMENTARY RADIO DRAMA PROGRAM

Hrvatski radio je prostor u kojem je iznikla krhkka ali blagostiva i plodno-sna biljka dokumentarna radio drama. U svijetu je poznatija imenom radio- Galerija SC fičer, a radi se zapravo o osobitom radio-obliku koji, po skromnom mišljenju autora ovih redaka, predstavlja krunu svih radijskih žanrova jer se u njemu nataložilo svekoliko radiofonjsko iskustvo. Dokumentarna radio drama je prostor kreativnog radija koji se izrazito ističe u moru sveopće trivijalnosti komercijalnih radio postaja koje autor ovih redaka zove bla-bla džuboks radijom. Zapljusnuti valovima toga mora, naši mladi slušatelji više i ne zna-ju, a možda ne mogu ni naslutiti neslućene mogućnosti koje radijski medij pruža. Dokumentarna radio drama zato obilježava bar jedno od graničnih polja koje bismo mogli imenovati kao 'radio umjetnost'. Ovaj izbor to će vam i potvrditi.

Ljubo Pauzin, urednik dokumentarne radio drame na Hrvatskom radiju

Croatian radio is a field where a fragile, yet noble and fruitful plant has cropped up – documentary radio drama. In the opinion of the author of this text, this specific radio form – better known worldwide as radio feature – deserves to be considered the upper crust of all radio genres because it incorporates the overall broadcasting experience.

Documentary radio drama is a field of radio creativity that stands out in the sea of general triviality of the commercial radio stations that this author calls 'blah blah jukebox' radio. Washed by the tides of that sea, our young listeners do not know, and perhaps cannot even have an idea about undreamed-of possibilities that radio as a medium can offer. Documentary radio drama marks one such border area we could call 'radio art'. This selection will prove it.

Bijesprvi navodno je dvadesetneštoogodišnjak, student filozofije, no srijeda wednesday njegov identitet nikada nije u potpunosti potvrđen niti je dotični ikada 20 - 22 h / 8 - 10 PM u javnost istupio svojim likom ili pravim imenom i prezimenom. Proslavi- Galerija SC li su ga korisnici YouTubea kojima su se svidjele njegove aktivističko- SC Gallery humorističke montirane snimke na kojima ismijava hrvatske političare i goruću društvenu problematiku. Sve je počelo kratkim epizodama 'Kiro prosviro' u kojima je ismijavao nekadašnjeg ministra unutarnjih poslova Ivica 'Jubito' Kirina, a na sreću sve brojnijih obožavatelja, nisu ostali pošteđeni ni visoki državni dužnosnici poput premijera Ivo Sanadera. Sebe opisuje kao 'mladića poput svakog drugog, punog entuzijazma, osjećaja za pravdu i vjere da svijet u kojem živimo može biti bolji te da ga i ja svojim postupcima mogu promijeniti nabolje'. Možda ga upoznate na ZagrebDoxu!

Allegedly, Bijesprvi is a twenty-something-year-old student of philosophy. However, his true identity has never been confirmed nor has he ever made any public appearance under his real name. He became popular after the users of YouTube got to like his activist satirical material in which he mocks Croatian politicians and topical social issues. It all started with, now famous, episodes mocking former Minister of Interior Ivica Kirin. To the satisfaction of numerous fans, Bijesprvi went on mocking other government officials, including Prime Minister Ivo Sanader. Bijesprvi describes himself as 'a young man like any other, full of enthusiasm, sense of justice and faith that the world we live in can be better and that I can make it better, too.' Maybe you meet him at ZagrebDox!

...Napisati vlastiti profil za ZagrebDox bio mi je jedan od najtežih zadataka dosad. Jer koliko god laska poziv da vam se filmovi prikažu na jednoj takvoj prestižnoj manifestaciji, meni je najdraže ostati u svojoj anonimnosti. Jer, kao što sam već nekoliko puta napisao 'Stvarna je zvijezda bila samo jedna - Ivica Kirin - Kiro, dok sam ja bio samo kroničar. Ostalo je već povijest...'

Bijesprvi YouTube kanal do danas je vidjelo gotovo 200.000 posjetitelja, a prvi video 'Kiro prosviro' pomalo se penje prema 900.000 gledanja - što je za zemlju s dvostruko više surfera impresivan rezultat (premda dio posjeta dolazi sa svih strana svijeta). 124 videa do danas su prikupila više od 5.000.000 gledanja svi zajedno, što je i u svjetskim okvirima velika brojka za nešto što inače nije tako zanimljivo masama - za politiku, i to na hrvatskom jeziku:).

Najedan su način građani posjetima pokazali da se ne boje smijati glupostima ili lažima, pa makar dolazile i od ljudi koji vode ovu zemlju. To bi po mojoj mišljenju trebalo biti normalno, ali izgleda da nije. Jasno mi je da to u bivšoj državi nije bilo moguće, moguće je da to još koči ljude... Jubito je danas postao nekakva vrsta političkog vica. Kad ste zadnji put čuli nekakav dobar politički o Sanaderu ili Milanoviću? Ja nisam, ali sam video dobrih videa:]

A sve je krenulo iz čiste sezancije. Prvo je Zombix, hrvatska blogerska legenda, napravio parodiju na Otvorena vrata Vlade RH - njegova Zatvorena vrata Vlade FUBARstana, a negdje u isto vrijeme netom je kružio video s parodijom na Sanadera i izručivanje Gotovine. Potom je 'harambasa22' napravio 'Računčić je kod nas' - parodiju na nestali račun iz Verone, vezan uz priču o prodaji Plive, i jednostavno su se stvari posložile. Zanimljivo je kako se stvari danas slažu i ja ovo pišem, dok na naplatu stiže račun iz Verone – stotine otkaza u Plivi:

Kiro je prosvirao u jednom 'Otvorenom', to nitko nije želio ili nije smio primijetiti, i onda sam rekao: 'Idem vidjeti imam li to ja uvrnut smisao za humor ili je i drugima to smiješno'. Kasnije je to išlo samo po sebi - da Kiro nije rekao Jubito i nije išao vrijedati, nastavaka vjerojatno ne bi ni bilo, ovako je sam stalno davao materijala za još.

Danas, kad se Kiro smirio u Virovitici, preostaju ostali političari poput Sanadera ili Milanovića, samo je bitna razlika da se na Sanderove izjave čak možete i dobro nasmijati, dok za Milanovićeve koji put teško možete nešto složiti jer to ne prolazi kod publike na Jubitu, što se i vidi po gledanostima. Zadnja parodija s Facebookom i scenama iz filma HITLER: KONAČAN PAD (Der Untergang) na neki način zaokružuje cijelu priču od YouTubea do Facebooka, od Kire do Sanadera, prateći munjevit razvoj novih tehnologija i društvenih mreža.

Danas je sve ovo već dio povijesti, kako on-line razvoja u Hrvatskoj, ali i u svijetu. Dok mnogi pričaju o Obaminoj kampanji i njegovu on-line uspjehu, veseli me što mogu konstatirati da su neki od Kirovih uradaka bili u tjednim izborima svjetskog YouTubea, još dok Obama girl npr. nije bila ni u mislima.

Tko je zapravo Bijesprvi? Mladić kao i svaki drugi, put entuzijazma, osjećaja za pravdu i vjere da svijet u kojem živimo može biti bolji te da ga i ja svojim postupcima mogu promjeniti nabolje. Tako sam odgojen i vjerujem da će takav i ostati, iako me primjeri koje bilježim često dovode u nedoumicu. Prema njima, naime, ispada da se isplati ponašati drugačije: lagati, varati, krasti... Što si u tome bolji, više si pozicioniran na društvenoj ljestvici. Volim sve ono što vole i moji vršnjaci - cure prije svega, nisam nekakav kompjuterski freak... Ponekad me i kritiziraju da nešto nije dobro montirano:).

Ime Bijesprvi ima svoju pozadinu, ali to ostavljam svima vama da je sami otkrivate. Mogu samo reći da je danas na internetu teško naći dobro ime koje nije zauzeto, pa je i to bio jedan od motiva. Danas, nakon više do dvije godine on-line života, trebam isto tako reći da mi brojni, također anonimni autori, šalju prijedloge, snimke ili već gotove filmove. Ako mi se učine dobrima, stavim ih na internet, ali to je čisto spontano. Nema tu nikakve ekipe, za većinu njih i ne znam. Nemam pojma tko je, primjerice, 'dellboy', koji se specijalizirao za prepjeve hitova i čije sam tekstove nekoliko puta koristio.

Bijesprvi

www.youtube.com/bijesprvi - Bijesprvi YouTube kanal

Writing my own profile for ZagrebDox was one of most difficult tasks so far: as flattering as an invitation to show your films on such a prestigious event may be, I prefer to stay anonymous. As I have repeatedly written: 'The true star was just one - Ivica 'Kiro' Kirin. I was but a chronicler. The rest is the history...'.

So far, almost 200,000 people visited the Bijesprvi YouTube channel and his first video 'Kiro prosvira' ('Kiro Went Cuckoo') is about to record 900,000 visits - quite a score for a country with twice as much surfers (although some visits come from across the world). The 124 videos have so far been viewed over 5,000,000 times all together, which is a large number even for the world standards. Especially when the subject is something that wide public is usually not very keen of - Croatian politics in Croatian language.

In a way, the citizens have shown they are not afraid to laugh at stupidities and lies, even if they come from the people who run this country. In my opinion, this should be normal, but it seems it isn't. I can understand it was not possible in the former country. Maybe the reminiscences of it still inhibit people... Today, 'Jubito' has become some kind of a political joke. What was the last time you heard a good joke on Sanader or Milanović? I myself can't remember... However, I saw some good videos.

And it all started as mere fun. Zombix, Croatian blogger legend, made a parody on the 'The Open Door of Croatian Government' and called it 'The Closed Door of FUBARstan Government'. At the same time, a video with a parody on Sanader and extradition of General Gotovina could be seen. Then 'haram-basa22' made his 'Receipt Is Here' - a parody on the never produced receipt for Sanader's expenses in Verona combined with the story about the sale of Pliva Company - and things just clicked. Interestingly, as I write this, the Verona bill has come due - in the form of hundreds of dismissals in Pliva.

'Kiro' went cuckoo in one 'Otvoreno' (a political TV show) but nobody either wanted or dared notice it. Then I said to myself: 'Is it just me and my twisted sense of humor or others would find it funny, too?' Later, things went on automatically. Had Kiro not said 'Jubito' instead of YouTube and had he not started offending, probably there would be no sequels. Instead, he himself stirred things up. Today, when Kiro has limited his activities to his hometown of Virovitica, we still have politicians like Sanader or Milanović. The only difference is that, while Sanader's statements can make you laugh, Milanović's are harder to attract the crowd on YouTube, as ratings tell us. In a way, the latest parody with Facebook and the scenes from Downfall (the film about Hitler's last days) completes the circle from YouTube to Facebook, from Kiro to Sanader, following the rapid development of new technologies and social networks.

Today, this is already a part of the history of on line development, both in Croatia and in the world. Now that many talk about Obama's campaign and his on-line success, I am happy to learn that some of the 'Kiro' videos featured in choices of the week on YouTube while Obama Girl, for instance, was not even in sight.

So who is Bijesprvi? A young man like any other, full of enthusiasm, sense of justice and the faith that the world we live in could be a better place and that I can do something to make it better. This is the way I've been raised and I believe this is the way I will stay, although the examples I record do often confuse me... According to them, it seems that a different approach pays off much more: lying, cheating, stealing... The better you are in it, the higher is your social ranking. I like everything other guys like - girls, first of all; I am not some computer freak... Sometimes I even get criticism that some of my footage has not been edited well.

Bijesprvi is the name that has its background but I'll leave it to you to find out. One of the motives for it was also the fact that there are very few good Internet names that are not in use already. Today, after over two years of my on-line life, many authors send me their suggestions, raw footage, or completed films. If I find them good, I put it on the net, but it comes spontaneously. I do not know them personally. For instance, I have repeatedly used the texts of 'dellboy', who specializes in recasts of well-known songs.

WHO ARE THE AUTHORS OF CROATIAN DOCUMENTARIES – ACADEMICS, AMATEURS, FILM MAKERS, JOURNALISTS?

okrugli stol, moderatorica / round table, moderator: Diana Nenadić

Svaki globalni trend ima specifične lokalne odraze, a tako je i s hrvatskom dokumentaristom. Šira dostupnost nove audio-vizualne tehnologije, jačanje aktivizma svih orientacija i potreba ne-ekspalističke reakcije na pojave oko nas (i u nama), utjecali su na demokratizaciju i grananje dokumentarne proizvodnje. Nezavisnih producenata i autora sve je više, no sve je manje onih s diplomom filmske škole; čini se da je – osim minimuma tehničke opreme – mnogo važnije imati snažan izazov iz stvarnosti, poriv i stav, te manje ili više audiovizualne kulture. Suvremeni hrvatski dokumentarac zato potpisuje šareno društvo: od studenata filma i amatera, preko istraživača raznih profila i aktivista-specijalista, do novinara opće prakse i školovanih redatelja. Nakon što istraži kako i zašto se dokumentaristom/icom postaje, te kakvi su produkcjski, estetski, kreativni i općekulturni dobici/gubici takve 'pluralistične' situacije, okrugli stol ZagrebDoxa trebao bi pronaći i odgovor na pitanje kako se u hrvatskoj kreativnoj dokumentaristici OSTAJE i OPSTAJE.

Every global trend has its specific local reflections. The same can be said for Croatian documentary films. The growing availability of new audio-visual technology, increasing of activism of all directions and the need for a non-escapist reaction to the developments around us (and inside us) have resulted in democratization and multiplication of documentary film production. Independent producers and authors are growing in numbers, but not those with a film school diploma. It seems that, besides minimum of technical equipment, it is much more important to feel a strong urge and see the reality as a challenge; only then comes some level of audio and visual culture. This is why the authors of modern Croatian documentaries are a colorful bunch: from students to film amateurs, from researchers of various profiles and activists-specialists to journalists and trained film directors. After it establishes who and why they become documentary film makers and what are the production, esthetic, creative and cultural gains of the above described 'pluralism', the round table of ZagrebDox should try to find an answer to the question how to remain and survive in Croatian documentary film.

LUSH PREDSTAVLJA / LUSH PRESENTS:

Lush TV, kratke filmove o društveno odgovornom poslovanju

Lush TV, short films on socially responsible business

Lush, organizacija koja se financira sapunima, predstavlja Lush TV, Galerija SC kratke filmove o društveno odgovornom poslovanju i svježoj, rukom SC Gallery radeđenoj kozmetici. Kroz seriju kratkih filmova Lush otkriva kako i gdje pronalazi te kupuje super svježe i prirodne sastojke. Kao vodeća internacionalna tvrtka u sektoru prirodne kozmetike, te br.1 u kontekstu društvene odgovornosti na polju zaštite životinja, Lush je sudjelovao u nizu angažiranih kampanja. Borio se protiv korištenja životinja u programu EU, testiranja kemikalija, također znanog kao REACH, u suradnji s udrugom Reprieve, osmislio je kampanju za pravedno suđenje zatvorenicima u Guantanamo Bay zatvoru. Lush je prestao s upotrebom palminog ulja u svojim sapunima zbog paljenja prašuma i izumiranja orangutana te pozvao ostale proizvođače da se pridruže toj inicijativi dok se u suradnji s organizacijom Sea Shepherd boriti protiv izlova morskih pasa.

Film: 'Ambalaža je smeće'

U kratkom dokumentarnom filmu osnivač Lush fresh handmade cosmetics, poslovni čovjek i borac za okoliš Mark Constantine, argumentira potrebu za potrošačkom revolucionjom te traži od ugostiteljstva da prestane s korištenjem malih pakiranja mlijeka i šećera, poziva na bojkot supermarketa koji pretjerano ambalažiraju proizvode, upućujući potrošače na tržnice i male prodavaonice gdje se roba prodaje u rinfuzi ili s minimalnim pakiranjem. 'Ako se ne osvrnemo i odlučimo za tradicionalan način kupovine, nastaviti ćemo s umatanjem velikog problema za buduće generacije' zaključuje bivši dobavljač proizvoda za The Body Shop i suosnivač multimilijunskog posla Lush fresh hand made cosmetics.

Lush, an organization that finances itself with soaps, presents Lush TV - short films on socially responsible business and fresh, hand made cosmetics. Through its series of short films, Lush reveals where and how it finds and buys super fresh natural ingredients for its products. As the leading international company in the natural cosmetics industry and No. 1 when it comes to social responsibility in animal protection, Lush has taken part in many campaigns. They fought against use of animals in the EU program and against testing of chemicals also known as REACH; in cooperation with Reprieve Association, it worked out a campaign for fair trials of the prisoners in Guantanamo Bay. Lush stopped using palm oil in its soaps because of burning of rain forests and extinction of orangutans and appealed to other producers to join this initiative. Together with Sea Shepherd organization, Lush is fighting against shark hunting.

Film: 'Package Is Garbage'

In his short documentary, the founder of Lush fresh handmade cosmetics, businessman and environmentalist Mark Constantine argues that a consumer revolution is need and demands from hotels and restaurants to stop using small packages of milk and sugar; he appeals to boycott of supermarkets which use excessive packaging for their products, recommending consumers to buy in green markets and small grocery stores where goods are sold from bulk or with minimum package.

'If we do not look back and choose the traditional way of shopping, we will go on wrapping up a large number of problems for future generations', concludes this former supplier of products for Body Shop and a co-founder of Lush fresh hand made cosmetics, a business now worth millions.

CITROËN C5 SNOW MOTION

Inteligentni sustav protiv proklizavanja

Mjesovita potrošnja (l/100km) Citroën C5 (norme CEE 1999-100): od 5,6 do 8,9. Emisija CO₂(u g/km): od 149 do 225.

CITROËN C5 SNOW MOTION

Citroën C5 opremljen je sustavom koji omogućuje osjetno bolje ponašanje automobila na snježnim i ledenim podlogama. Zahvaljujući analizi nekoliko parametara (nagib, vrsta snijega, leda...) računalo dopušta veće proklizavanje pogonskih kotača i drugačije upravlja desnim, a drugačije lijevim kotačem, što vozilu omogućuje bolje kretanje i ubrzavanje u teškim uvjetima.
